Danville Swine Producers Install Innovative Manure-Handling Setup

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

Editor's note: "Making An Impact" will be a new series of features on young farmers who are creating their own success. The first of a regular (not necessarily weekly) series focuses on a successful swine operation in Northumberland County. Future issues will focus on farmers in Luzerne and Berks counties, in addition to state and regional programs affecting new and beginning farmers.

DANVILLE (Northumberland Co.) — Caressa Crone's goal is to raise hogs profitably, in a way that minimizes stress on the animals, her family, and everybody else involved, including neighbors.

Crone, along with her husband Richard and father-in-law Stanley Crone, are willing to take some risks in reaching that goal.

"We've got to be responsible in the way we conduct ourselves. We're professionals, just like the doctor and the lawyer."

Caressa Crone

The Crones manage two 1,100-head finishing barns, built last year for feeding contract hogs. The facilities include an automatic hog sorting system, along with an unconventional pen design that provides a lot of mobility for the animals and fits well with manure storage plans.

Their latest project is a digester manure system that will produce biogas (largely methane) to generate electricity. Digested manure will be returned to pits under the hog barns for storage.

Odor control is one of the main benefits the Crones expect from the new manure system. At this point, the farm is surrounded by supportive neighbors, but new housing developments are being built in the area — bringing a greater chance for negative reactions.

Heading off potential problems is part of a "professional" approach to hog farming, according to Caressa Crone.

"We've got to be responsible in the way we conduct ourselves," she said. "We're professionals, just like the doctor and the lawyer."

With two sons — Rusty, 9, and Sam, 6 — Crone is interested in making the farm and neighborhood an attractive place for the next generation.

"We care about the environment and what we leave our children," she said.

Manure digestion technology has been around for decades. What sets the Crones' system apart is the way storage will be handled.

Making An Impact

A FOCUS ON YOUNG FARMERS

The Crone family, including Caressa, right, and her father-in-law Stanley, center, are working with Penn State and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture on a digester system that will produce biogas from hog manure on their Northumberland County farm. The gas will be used to generate electricity to run the farm's two finishing barns. Joining the Crones is Robert J. Meinen, Penn State senior extension associate. Photo by Dave Lefever

Larry Specht, left, was recognized Wednesday evening for his years of service to the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association and the industry, as he begins his retirement. He is congratulated by Ken Teel. More about the awards program on page A22.

PASA's Farming For The Future Conference Feb. 5-7

BRIAN SNYDER
Centre Co. Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) will conduct its 13th annual Farming for the Future Conference Feb. 5-7 here at the Penn Stater Conference Center and Hotel.

This year's theme is "Pathways to Prosperity: The New Face of Agriculture." Once again the PASA conference will combine inspirational stories and practical information along with first-rate keynote addresses and cutting edge workshops. About 100 farmers, activists, and educators make up the list of presenters for this year's newly expanded program.

Keynote speakers this year include renowned author and sustainable business leader Paul Hawken, and Anuradha Mittal, a native of India who is co-director of Food First/The Institute for Food and Development Policy in Oakland, Calif.

Local Food On Campus: Farmers, Colleges Collaborate

DAVE LEFEVER

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — College students get excited about locally-grown food.

That's what coordinators of a new farm-to-college program are finding out. College food directors who buy local are noticing it, too.

"Students love it," said Janet Kassab, food purchasing director at Swarthmore College in Delaware County. "They constantly tell us."

Kassab buys apples and other fruit on a seasonal basis from nearby Indian Orchards to serve in the college dining hall.

"It's very popular and very well received," she said.

Swarthmore is one of a number of colleges in Pennsylvania so far that are willing to buy local food. Beside produce, food directors are showing interest in purchasing local milk and meats as well.

LAST YEAR	1473	674	274	425

Compared to last Thursday, slaughter steers sold mostly 2 00-3 50 lower throughout all of the quality grades It did not come as much of a surprise though, as the western trade set the tone mid-week when their live cattle were 3 00-5 00 lower from 96 00-98 00 Dressed sales in Nebraska were from 5 00-7 00 lower at 155 00 The Board has not been farmer-friendly as of late either, as the current spot December live cattle contract closed at 93 57 on Thursday (holding a 2 00-4 00 discount to the cash trade) Most local producers have become accustomed to receiving 100 00 or more for their fats, and even though sales have begun to move below that magic number both local and national finished prices are still very good at these levels A lot of the cattle at the Thursday New Holland run are still carrying some fill, with buyers purchasing the bellied-up steers around 3 00-5.00 lower than the bulk However, full weigh-ups can be expected now as temperatures are dropping, and snow and rain will become a permanent fixture in our forecasts as we move through the winter months Prices were not the only thing that were lower late in the week, receipts were nearly 100 head lighter than last Thursday's, and the overall quality of the run was lower as well. Slaughter Holstein steers sold mostly 1 00-2 50 lower on an uneven test as there were not very many higher quality Holsteins available Slaughter heifers sold 2 00-2 50 lower, although there was a fairly nice selection on offer Lean slaughter cows sold 2 00-3 00 lower, with fleshier cows trading steady to 1 00 lower Cow receipts high for the second week in a row, with over 675 head on offer at this Thursday's run Slaughter bulls sold mostly steady The Thursday supply included 353 head of slaughter steers, 68 head of slaughter heifers, 678 head of slaughter cows, 152 head of slaughter bulls, with 259 head of feeder cattle

Scheduled for the Jan. 10 issue: features from farmers who are going to the winter agricultural showcase event at the Farm Show Complex and their experiences in attending the great event in Harrisburg. Also scheduled: the annual FFA Keystone Degree winners and a complete schedule of events, including the many demonstrations for farmers during Farmer Days.

CUSHIONED EGG

ROD CONVEYOR TRANSPORT SYSTEM

Electronic Drives
The innovative, electronically-controlled drive system enables eggs to be transported at a smooth, continuous speed on an endless conveyor with drive units located intermittently up to 150' apart.

Uni-Trac Construction
The "Cushioned Rod" egg conveyor is setting industry standards for efficiency. flexibility and cost savings with a unified construction design that eliminates the problems of egg transfer.

Optimum Rod Spacing
Space between each cushioned rod is the key to egg separation and preventing smaller eggs from slipping through the conveyor while allowing all debris to be sifted out.

Rol-Link Chain System
An endless, custom designed, roller chain system and flexible cushioned plastic rods, cradle eggs in a gentle position that helps eliminate collisions and breakage

Design Flexibility
The unique "Cushioned Rod" egg conveyor enables you to custom design a system that gently transports eggs up, down, around corners and in a continuous straight line without transfer, and even declines to match processing equipment.

Ideal Conveyor Widths
16" - 20"

Custom Corners
The unique radial corner system in the Farmer Automatic rod conveyor can be custom designed to fit 15° through 90° turns.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
December 10, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

Grain and soybean bids got off to a red hot start early this week, especially soybeans, but cooled off a little today Wheat 2-5 cents lower Corn steady to 2 cents lower Sorghum 1-2 cents lower Soybeans mostly 2 cents lower As usual the market maker this week has been exports and prospects for exports A Chinese delegation is coming to the US in the next week or so, supposedly looking for soybeans and maybe wheat Currently, it looks like there is good chemistry between China and the US Recently the US lowered tariffs on steel and this pleased China We have 13 billion dollar trade deficit with China this year Also, recent declines in the dollar favorable for exports Soybean stocks in very tight supply and producers are hoping for a big China order After recent price upturns US soybeans 2 15-2 20 above a year ago, this up around 35 percent World usage of soybeans increases every year However, wheat prices in the US are 10-15 cents under a year ago The US had had an increase in wheat production last year but world stocks are at a very low level China may find some wheat cheaper out of other countries There have been some fairly good wheat export announcements this week, including listed below.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
December 10, 2003
Report Supplied by USDA

SPOT PRICES OF CLASS II CREAM, dollars per lb butterfat F O B producing plants Northeast 1 7192-1 9559 Delivered Equivalent Atlanta 1 7254-1 9933 mostly 1 8189-1 9310

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb wet solids, F O B producing plants Northeast Class II, includes monthly formula prices 8700- 9300 Class III, spot prices 9800-1 0600

SPOTS SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK FLORIDA This Week In 8, Out 0, Last Week In 0, Out 0, Last Year In 30, Out 0 SOUTHEAST STATES This Week In 0, Out 0, Last Week In 0, Out 0, Last Year In 0, Out 0

EDITOR'S NOTE Due to changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003

Milk production throughout the East is mostly steady Last week's storm and colder weather appear to have slowed or halted milk production gains in parts of Southeast and Middle Atlantic areas The storm dumped any where from a few inches to more than two feet of snow in areas from Maryland to Maine Milk transportation schedules were delayed by the storm, but few problems were noted Bottlers were very active prior to the storm Most bottlers are back on normal schedules this week and most are planning for the upcoming holidays when milk sales usually slow Surplus milk volumes remain tight Many contacts still comment on how little milk there is coming into their plants Florida's need for milk is quite well balanced, which mean that shipping plants do have a little more milk to process However, this week's continued good demand for Grade A milk for bottling is keeping manufacturers' receipts light

The condensed skim markets are little changed from past weeks The lower Class III prices are still too high to compete with NDM Producers are filling contracts for Class II wet solids, but report few spot inquiries This is allowing them to run their dryers a little more frequently

The fluid cream market remains firm Producers have barely enough to fill their contracts and some have had to buy supplemental loads Spot prices are generally higher following last week's 2 33 cent jump in the CME butter average Demand is good, but contacts all know that most of the current demand will come to a screeching halt just before the holidays Historically, this is a time when many ice cream makers reduce output or shut down for a two week period Production of holiday items like egg nog and bottled cream will also be winding down next week Cream cheese output is holding at moderate to heavy levels, depending on cream availability to individual producers Churning activity is up slightly, but still lighter than expected

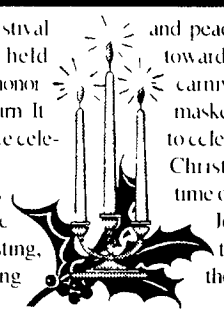
Saturnalia

The ancient Roman festival of Saturnalia was held from December 17 to 23 to honor the god of agriculture Saturn It incorporated pagan solstice celebrations with many elements we now think of as Christmas traditions the closing of businesses feasting, candle lighting gift giving and peace Equality and goodwill toward all were prevalent and a carnival atmosphere reigned as masked revelers took to the streets to celebrate Eventually, the early Christian Church adopted this time of year as the anniversary of Jesus birth and emphasized the loftier attributes of the celebration



Pork Chop and Potato Bake

- 4 to 5 medium potatoes, sliced thin
- 1 onion, sliced thin
- salt and pepper, to taste
- 4 center-cut pork chops
- 1 can of mushroom soup

Preheat oven to 375°F. Grease a casserole dish. Layer sliced potatoes on the bottom, spread onions over them, and add salt and pepper Top with pork chops Spread cream of mushroom soup (don't add water) over the top Bake for about 1 hour, until potatoes are cooked through and pork chops are tender MAKES 4 SERVINGS.

OPINION

Farming Trends

Recently a meeting of the monthly Ag Issues Forum in Lancaster helped identify certain trends in the ag industry that are worth noting.

Our thanks go to Mike Brubaker for sending this description of the major critical issues facing agriculture:

• Consolidation. Consolidation is occurring at all levels of agriculture starting at the farm and progressing through the supply and demand chains. Numbers of farms, animal units, and agribusiness entities are declining rapidly, production per unit is increasing, and new markets are emerging.

• Gove nment and regulatory influence. These powerful forces are exacting various pressures on all of agriculture, which result in losses to profitability and declining global competitiveness. As these changes occur, there will be ongoing influence by all levels of government and additional regulations and compliance requirements are certain. This influence will have an impact on the industry's ability to remain competitive on a global scale.

• Globalization. Advanced communications, technology, transportation, and trade incentives as well as "disincentives" have created an environment whereby "globalization" is occurring. Locally, our agriculture has an impact on the world; similarly, the world has an impact on our agriculture.

• Niche markets. Market and consumer demand for specialty products, such as organic and ethnic foods, is continuing to grow. This demand will be supplied by producers who see an opportunity to fulfill a philosophical goal and/or profit from a growing segment in the marketplace.

• Technology advances. Science and industry will continue to develop tools for all aspects of agricultural production that will contribute to a more efficient and competitive agriculture. These advances will also provide tools to trace agricultural products from the field to the table.

• Capital/finance. Agriculture will not be exempt form the pressures faced by other businesses/industries. As financing opportunities become more challenging for the production farmer and industry, agriculture will utilize precision-like management and intensify capitol. Financial sources will continue to increase the minimum business operating standards of agriculture to qualify for capital and encourage competitive rates of return when compared to nonagricultural businesses.

• Animal welfare. Agriculture continues to make animal welfare advances to enhance consumer confidence, provide continued access to global and local markets, and to remain competitive. Animal agri-

Now Is The Time

Lancaster County Extension Director

To Explore The Formation Of A Pennsylvania Manure Applicators Association

Increased public pressure has led to, and will continue to produce, regulatory measures that directly affect the manure application industry.

On Dec. 16 a meeting will be conducted at the Dauphin County Agriculture and Resource Center in Dauphin to discuss forming a Pennsylvania Manure Applicators Association. The event will begin at 5:30 p.m. This will follow the Pennsylvania Manure Hauler Certification Course which will be taught that day at the same location.

An association for the hauling industry would enable the industry to have a voice in the development of these regulations. It could also provide other benefits such as relationship building with regulatory agencies and insurance packages. Discussion that evening will be directed toward the steps that could be taken to form and implement this association. Presenters will be Robb Meinen, Penn State University and Walt Peechatka, PennAg Industries.

An optional dinner will begin at 5 p.m. for those interested in the applicator association. Please preregister for the dinner. There is no cost to attend the meeting but there is a $15 charge for the meal. To register, contact Robb Meinen, Penn State University, at (814) 865-2987 or rjm134@psu.edu.

To Complete Year-End Tax Planning

With the New Year just around the corner, Regional Farm Management Agent Roland Freund reminds producers to complete year-end tax planning. Prudent farm managers will take steps to save taxes, know if they have accounted for finances accurately, and collect the information needed to accurately measure 2003 business performance. There are a number of essential tasks for the year-end "to-do list."

First one should pay all bills that are due. This is a good business practice, and it simplifies the task of preparing the list of accounts payable if there are none! Each dollar spent could save you 47 cents or more in taxes.

Second, Freund suggests producers should count their blessings and review their charitable giving. There is much to be thankful for this year, even for those who had some struggles. While milk prices have not been great, crops have done reasonably well and the egg and beef industries are having an exceptional year. At this season, give generously to your church and charities. Not only will you share your blessings, but also contributions give you the same tax break as advance purchases of feed or supplies.

Another important year-end step is to complete farm records. Next year starts a new record period for most farmers. Confusion reigns when two sets of books are used simultaneously, so it is important to get all available transactions recorded promptly. It should be possible to close the books within a few weeks when bank statements give you the amount of interest and principal to record.

The end-of-year inventory is essential for analysis. For accuracy it should be completed before you retire New Year's Eve, but that can be difficult! If it is done carefully every year, balance sheet changes can be calculated for the 2003 accrual adjustments. This must be done if you wish to know your cost of production.

Bank balance-sheet forms can be used to record the information. Computerized systems should have them built in. If you need a worksheet or spreadsheet, call (717) 240-6500 or e-mail rfreund@psu.edu. The "Dairy Farm Feed Cost Control" spreadsheet can help with silo capacity and such computations Go to http://capitaldairy.cas.psu.edu/, click on "Dairy Management Tools," and scroll down to download it.

The "Current Assets" section of the inventory includes "Growing Crops." Enter the value of seed, fertilizer ime, and fuel invested. Record "Crops for Sale and Feed" including feed in mill storage and prepurchases. Significant supplies of fertilizer, chemicals, and semen must be listed and valued. Feeder livestock and growing heifers should be included. "Accounts receivable" (milk check, crop/livestock sales, etc.) and "Cash Balance" (checking + savings + under mattress) must be accurately recorded to make any cash flow check reliable.

Feed and livestock inventories should be valued at a conservative farm-gate value. That means market price less commission, less the cost of getting them to the selling point. If the auction sells a single ton of hay for $150, buyers might only offer $110 for each of your 1,000 tons of hay equivalent at your farm.

Your accountant needs information on sales and purchases of all capital assets to maintain the depreciation (basis) record. But you need to do your own Fair Market valuation annually.

Unless you are planning to sell out, avoid wild fluctuations in dairy cow values, and don't escalate land values annually. These gimmicks can seriously distort analysis. Aim to reduce the value of equipment in inventory by 15 to 20 percent, and dairy buildings and structures about 10 percent annually.

Finally, you need to update your liabilities list and plan to pay taxes. Using debt to finance tax avoidance (that is, taking out a loan to finance prepays or capital investments) can create extreme economic hardship in the future.

Editor:

On Nov. 17, the much-publicized milk hearing was conducted at Keystone College. Dairy farmers came from as far away as Buffalo, N.Y. to make their sincere concerns known.

In addition to aides from Congressmen Sherwood and Kanjorksi's offices, Senator Specter's office was duly represented. State Senator and Pennsylvania Minority Leader Bob Mellow thought the hearing was important enough to send his administrative assistant to the event.

Others attending the hearing included Larry Breach, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union; Ron Williams, former Wyoming County commissioner who serves as a regional director of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; Jim Conners, the former mayor of Scranton, represented Gov. Ed Rendell's office; and Gordon Hiller, a former regional director of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture

SEEING THE BIGGER PICTURE

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 409:3-11.
Devotional Reading:
Luke 1:5-80.

Last week, we saw how the purely personal concern of Hannah became the means whereby God was able to convey a bigger, deeper message. Hannah's anxiety over her childlessness was transformed into a proclamation of thanksgiving, not only for God's vindication of Hannah, but for the greater salvation that God promised to his people Israel.

We see a variation on this same theme in Luke 1, when Zechariah, overwhelmed with gratitude for the birth of his son John (later, John the Baptist), is "filled with the Holy Spirit" and proclaimed the role his son would play in an even greater drama of salvation: "And you, child, will be called the prophet of the Most High; for you will go before the Lord to prepare his ways...." (1:76). For a proud father on the day of his son's long-delayed birth, to acknowledge that his son would be the forerunner of one even greater is no small feat.

It was, however, a recognition that would be echoed in his son John's own response to Jesus of Nazareth: "I baptize you with water for repentance, but he who is coming after me is mightier than I, whose sandals I am not worthy to carry...." (Mt.3:11) and "He must increase, but I must decrease" Jn. 3:30).

The World 'Out There'

When we are born into this life, there is no world beyond our immediate milieu, and everything or person "out there" exists solely for our own nourishment and care. Maturing — which is not the same as getting older — takes place as I realize that I am only part of that world, which once I believed began and ended with me.

Sadly, it would appear that some people never grow to that realization, including, sometimes, those who regard themselves as followers of Jesus Christ.

In Luke 1 we are confronted with the concept of vocation. John the Baptist's father, Zechariah, makes several allusions to it. First, he alludes to the calling of Israel to a special relationship with God and mission for God. This was a calling originally "promised to our fathers," a reminder of "the oath which he swore to our father Abraham, to grant us that we, being delivered from the hand of our enemies, might serve him without fear...." (1:72-74). They were part of a much bigger picture than that of their own lives.

Zechariah also recognizes that his son, John, has been called/vocated by God to be the forerunner of another. "And you child will be called the prophet of the Most High; for you will go before the Lord to prepare his ways" (Lk. 1:76). Some of us will be tempted to think, well, good for John; he had a vocation. He was called to be and do something important in God's scheme of things.

Making A Difference

Christian vocation, however, is not just a concern for specially gifted or specially recognized Christians. All of us are called to make a difference in this world.

In one or more of millions of different ways are called by God "to give knowledge of salvation to his people in the forgiveness of their sins... when the day shall dawn upon us from on high to give light to those who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet unto the way of peace" (1:77-79). Zechariah's description of John's calling is no different than God's calling to each of us.

If you are in any way intimidated by the Baptist's calling, remember what Jesus said in Like 7:28: "I tell you, among those born of women, none is greater than John; yet he who is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he." This is not a put-down of John the Baptist, but an elevation of the Christian vocation to which God calls each of us who would follow his Son. Each of us is called to something very special in God's service. Our failure to recognize and respond to that call and see the big picture does not diminish it one bit.

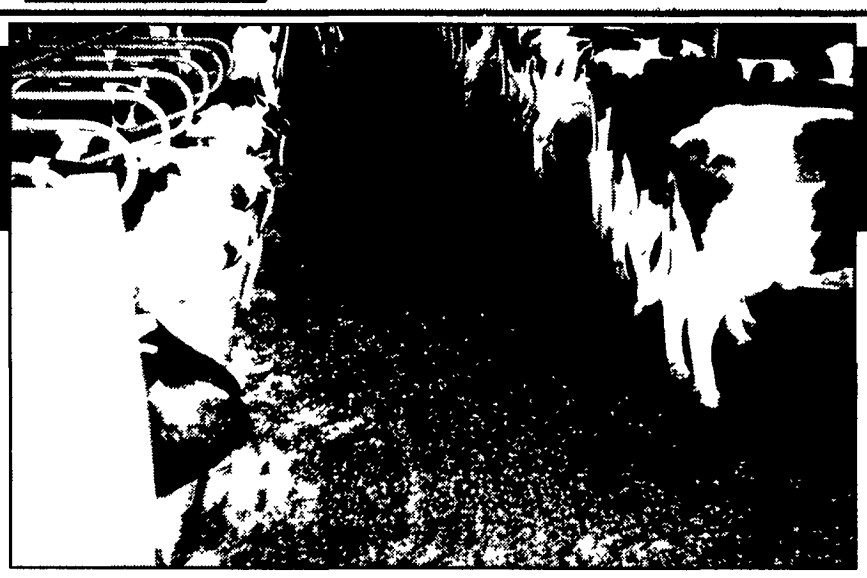
"WAFFLE SLAT" Syri-Con Corporation



"We would use slats again if doing it all over"

Harold Keeney, David, Nancy & Mark Wolfskill

Our original plan was to install scrapers. But after 10 minutes in a slatted barn in Somerset County, we changed our minds. Some people stay away from slats because of the initial cost, but that extra cost is made up for in the first couple years.

The one thing I like the most about slats is that there is no expense. I don't have any scrapers or drive units to maintain. I don't have to run scrapers every day or haul manure like we did in our previous tie stall barn. The cows' foot health has been a lot better, and the cows stay much cleaner. Our milk production is up and the somatic cell count has gone down. I give at least some of the credit to the slats because with less moisture on the floor, there is less bacteria.

- David Wolfskill

"The answer to the most common question is 'No, there is no build-up.'"

2004 AG DIRECTORY

The year 2004 marks the fourth annual Lancaster Farming Ag Directory

Looking for the experts in field and barnyard management? Looking for the leaders for crop and farm financial planning? Then you've come to the right place

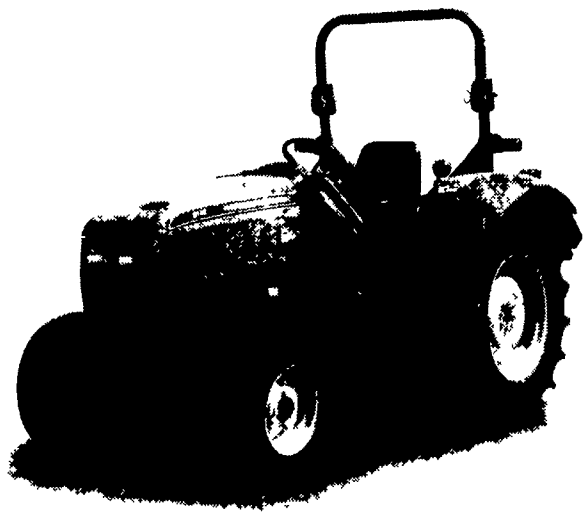
For 2004 Lancaster Farming plans a new portion of the book Call On The Experts It's a component of our Ag Directory helpful for those seeking answers right at your fingertips The directory is scheduled in the Dec 27 issue

In 2003 the Ag Directory totaled 152 pages and was jam packed with contact names numbers addresses and even Websites from agriculture in our eight state region including Pennsylvania and surrounding states The essential reference book will include more names addresses phone numbers and Web addresses than ever before

Make the 2004 Lancaster Farming Ag Directory your source of expert information from the more than $80 billion regional ag industry

RIGHT-SIZE YOUR TRACTOR FLEET...

...IT DOESN'T MATTER IF YOUR "FLEET" IS ONE OR TEN.



Introducing the AGCO GT Series...an all-new 45 to 73 PTO HP series designed exactly right to meet your needs...when a compact tractor doesn't have the heft you need and the larger mid-size is a bigger investment than you want to make.

Whatever your farming application—specialty crops, loader work, hay making — an AGCO GT might be just right for you. Off the farm, a GT provides the power, dependability and dealer backing you want to make your customers happy and your bottomline brighter.

GT45 • GT55 • GT65 • GT75

All four models are available with 2 or 4 wheel drive and in both platform or cab styles.

BAILEY TO TESTIFY AT ITC HEARING

Next week I'll be testifying at a hearing at the U.S. International Trade Commission in Washington, D.C. The subject will be dairy protein imports. Rather than wait until the usual letters to the editors come out in the papers, I've decided to be proactive and tell you why I'm going to testify, what I found in my research, and what it means to your bottom line. You can find the entire report on my Website.

First, the hearing has nothing to do with any tariff legislation — not directly, at least. It is a fact-finding hearing. I'm going because the chairman of the commission invited me.

I have been doing a lot of work over the past year on imports, exports, and component accounting. I'm doing this because Pennsylvania dairy farmers asked me to. Second, as a professor at Penn State University, I will not be taking any sides on the issue of MPC imports, trade, or tariff legislation. That simply isn't what we do at Penn State. Third, all the work I will be presenting is transparent and will be published in academic journals. I have a forthcoming article in the Journal of Dairy Science. Fourth, my research is funded by both Penn State and USDA grants.

Over the past few years I have been unsettled by two things. First, we don't have any idea what impact trade is having on the U.S. dairy industry. Dairy farmers have been asking very good questions and getting very few answers. Second, nobody, not even the "experts" or trained economists like me really understand the fundamental supply and demand factors that drive milk prices higher or lower. We have relied instead on the data we get from USDA.

MPC imports have gone up over the past few years. So have imports of butter blends, butter substitutes, cheeses, and chocolate block. But what does that mean? Does it represent a lot of trade or a little? No one knows the answer to that because you need to break it all down into fundamental components.

USDA does not even reflect most of these items in their own trade and supply and demand numbers. So I set about developing my own system of accounting for trade and domestic supply and demand.

I will be presenting this research at the ITC hearing. Basically my approach looks at all trade, groups them into categories, and then computes the crude protein, butterfat, and other

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
December 5, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Dec 5 — Total Receipts 411,500, last week 157,800, last year 403,300 Direct 52,900, last week 25,200, last year 57,000 Video/Internet 25,800, last week 29,500, last year 27,600 Auctions 332 800, last week 103,100, last year 318,700 This week s auction volume included 34 percent over 600 lbs and 42 percent heifers

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, last week's feeder cattle marketing was too light to establish a good price trend or a good comparison for this weeks trading However, receipts returned to normal this week and feeder cattle and calves over 550 lbs sold steady to 2 00 higher than two weeks ago For months, people have been talking and market reviews (including this one) have been stressing the discount that lightweight calves have bringing compared to yearlings and heavy calves that are suitable for the feedlot Not anymore! Cattle feeders and backgrounders have found it difficult to buy the heavier feeder cattle at price levels that will hedge

All of a sudden, they have jumped on the flyweight calves that have numerous marketing options and can be cheapened-up over time so that they will hedge Steer and heifer calves weighing under 550 lbs sold 3 00-7 00 higher with many instances up to 10 00 higher than before Thanksgiving The increased demand for these lightweights was very consistent from the Southeast all the way across and up to Montana Colorado and Wyoming auctions routinely sold 300-400 lb steers around 150 00 with Torrington Livestock Market posting 162 00-166 00 Buyers would never pay this kind of money in the country, consequently direct receipts have been light and auctions continue to have good runs despite heavy receipts in the late summer and early fall Over 26,000 head of cattle were sold this week between just two southern Missouri auctions Joplin Regional and Ozarks Regional Stockyards Two of these sales were Wean-Vac specials that continue to increase in popularity with healthy premiums for healthy calves Handsome prices continue to bring cattle out of the woodwork Needless to say, many backgrounders are deciding to take their profit early instead of gambling on things staying this good

YOU EXPECT MORE FROM A LEADER

It should come as no surprise that the GLEANER R65/R75 combines are among the easiest in the industry to operate. After all, GLEANER was the first to introduce electro-hydraulic controls back in 1972. We have a lot of experience in operator control and comfort.

The minute you sit down in the deluxe air-ride seat, you'll notice how all the most frequently used controls are located on the armrest console or the new hydro control handle. Both are mounted to the seat, so they float with you over field contours. Gone are the days of trying to "home in" on a button or switch while bouncing over end-row furrows or ruts in the field.

Hamilton Equipment Returns To Farm Show

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — "Our state legislators have committed significant state funds to build the new exhibitor hall. The enthusiasm of the Farm Show commission and their employees is contagious," said David Rupp, sales manager of Hamilton Equipment, Inc.

"It seems like a total renewed commitment by the state," he said. "I really don't know of any other state in our area that has new facilities like these."

The Farm Show, Rupp believes, is worth the time and effort of the company.

"We have facilities that rival or exceed any of our neighboring states. I think Pennsylvania's farmers will visit the Pennsylvania Farm Show and Hamilton Equipment will be there to greet them."

After a two-year hiatus from exhibiting at the Farm Show, the business returned in 2003 to the event, partly because of the financial commitment which shows renewed efforts by the state, said Rupp.

The business will have 5,600 square feet at the Farm Show.

Although the designated "Farmer Days" will be important to the business, the weekends are also critical, said Rupp.

"We have quite a bit of business comes from weekend and hobby farmers, who also contribute a great deal to the bottom line," he said. The company "is not limited to high-horsepower tractors. I think Hamilton Equipment has products that apply to both customers."

Hamilton Equipment is a wholesale distributor selling farm equipment through a network of servicing dealers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia. The company is a family-owned business that is run by Bob Hamilton, son of founder R.J. Hamilton Sr.

Founded in 1938 by Bob Hamilton Sr., who grew up on the farm and was the lone salesman, the business has grown from a main warehouse — a 4,000-square-foot building in downtown Ephrata — to include seven territory managers in a six-state area.

Products distributed by Hamilton Equipment include Danuser post hole diggers, DEMCO sprayers, Herd seeders, Kelley backhoes and loaders, Westfield grain augers, and Worksaver farm products.

The company has expanded to include Hamilton Distributing, a paint distribution business with more than 140 paint products for residential customers.

Hamilton Equipment employs 70 people in their three warehouses at Ephrata, Raphine, Va., and Leola. The Leola warehouse is a separate warehouse for paint distribution and has a separate sales force.

"Hamilton Equipment has been exhibiting at the Pennsylvania Farm Show since 1940. The support of Pennsylvania's farmers is the reason we have grown from a company with 4,000 square feet of warehouse to our current facilities with 70,000 square feet in Ephrata and 33,000 square feet in Raphine, Virginia," said Rupp.

DEP Secretary: It's Time For A New Way Of Thinking

CHARLENE M. SHUPP ESPENSHADE
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Members of the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders gathered at the Holiday Inn Wednesday night for their annual banquet and the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association Awards Program.

The keynote speaker for the evening was Kathleen McGinty, secretary, Department of Environmental Protection (DEP).

McGinty began her talk announcing that Gov. Ed Rendell announced his Water Resource Advisory Board Stakeholders.

McGinty said, "There is a strong representation from the agricultural sector" on the board. McGinty also stressed this group will have a lot of say in the planning of water conservation and use in Pennsylvania.

The 18-member statewide committee has 12 members appointed by the governor and six members to be appointed by the House and Senate.

In regards to the Conservation Resource Enhancement Program (CREP), McGinty noted that DEP had fallen behind an estimated $3.25 million in payments.

"I have a good announcement, which is not 100 percent, but it is getting there. We were able, through trimming and rearranging, to shake out $2.4 million," said McGinty. "We will dedicate that little 'Christmas present' to try make up for some of those arrears. Not to fully pay off our bill, but to hopefully get some money into your pockets."

The secretary calls this a "nice downpayment" for the CREP program and hopes to pay off the balance after the passage of a budget.

Pennsylvania needs to revitalize their way of environmental thinking, according to McGinty.

"The theme that has been guiding our work is that we need to change the debate on all things environmental.

"We need to develop a new way of thinking about environmental challenges that, instead of driving people apart, instead of pitting interests against one another, we need an invitation for all interests to come together and use creativity and ingenuity so that we both revitalize our environment and stimulate economic growth," said McGinty.

Several initiatives that DEP continues to develop to encourage thinking outside of the box include several new initiatives and ideas.

Working with the Department of Agriculture (PDA), together the departments continue to look at ways that can stimulate economic growth, such as the Pennsylvania Energy Harvest initiative to develop clean energy, as well as clean up the environment.

McGinty noted that Pennsylvania agriculture has a role to play in the economic and environmental issues.

"We have a precious jewel here in Pennsylvania. We need to hold onto it as a real key to our economic and environmental lifeblood," she said.

Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff was also in attendance and reaffirmed the administration's commitment to agriculture, environmentally and economically.

"Pennsylvania is a gem of a state. It has fertile soils, diverse topography, and some of the most scenic farms in the world.

And yet, it has many of the challenges of urban pressure. We want to give the farmers all of the opportunities they can have in order to continue farming," said Wolff.

The Pennsylvania Dairymen also recognized several individuals for their outstanding work in the dairy industry.

Larry Specht of Penn State was honored by the board for his many years of service to the Dairymen's association and dairy industry. The board of directors thanked him for his dedication to the dairymen's association and wished him well on his retirement.

The 2004 Charles E. Cowan Memorial Award honoree was James Kennedy of Valencia.

"James Kennedy's service to agriculture and the industry has spanned over decades," said Dave Smith, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association.

Kennedy is the owner of Four Seasons Farm, where he and his family raises 200 head of Holstein and Brown Swiss cattle. Outside of the farm, Kennedy is a past director of the Butler Farm Show, Butler County Fair, and Butler County Extension Committee. In 1996, Kennedy became a county commissioner where he was instrumental in organizing the county's farmland preservation program. Kennedy also serves on the newly formed Pennsylvania Dairy Taskforce.

The Distinguished Dairy Women Award was presented to Patty McMurray of Eighty-Four.

"Patty McMurray's name is synonymous with service to the dairy industry," said Dixie Burris of DairyOne. "(She) has been actively involved with the dairy industry."

McMurray helps her brother manage the family's 100-cow operation by raising all calves to breeding age. She is also active with several breed associations, holding state director positions and serving on countless committees. McMurray is the event chair for the 2005 National Jersey Convention, scheduled in Pennsylvania.

Dan McFarland was named the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association Extension Award recipient. McFarland is the senior extension educator with agricultural engineering program in Adams, Cumberland, Franklin, Lancaster, and York counties.

"His finest accomplishment are when working one-on-one with dairymen, whether troubleshooting a current facility problem or designing a new facility," said Mike O'Connor. "His service to the dairy industry is invaluable in terms of bottom line dollars, which are a direct result of his work with dairy producers. His optimism, energy, and good humor are only surpassed by his expertise in the engineering arena."

DEP Secretary Kathleen McGinty addresses the audience about agriculture's role in the environment.

Patty McMurray, left, was named the Distinguished Dairy Woman. She is congratulated by Dixie Burris.

USDA Designates Counties In New Jersey Agriculture Disaster Areas

BORDENTOWN, N.J. — Paul J. Hlubik, executive director of USDA's Service Agency in New Jersey, announced that USDA has designated 16 counties in New Jersey as primary agricultural disaster areas for rain, disease, and insect infestation that occurred from Jan. 1, 2003, and continuing. Counties are Atlantic, Cumberland, Middlesex, Salem, Burlington, Gloucester, Monmouth, Somerset, Camden, Hunterdon, Morris, Sussex, Cape May, Mercer, Ocean, and Warren.

For the same disaster, the counties of Essex, Passaic, and Union are named as contiguous disaster areas.

These counties and cities were designated on Dec. 2, 2003, making all qualified farm operators eligible for low-interest emergency (EM) loans from the Farm Service Agency (FSA), provided eligibility requirements are met.

Farmers in eligible counties have eight months from the date of the declaration to apply for the loans to help cover part of their actual losses. FSA will consider each loan application on its own merits, taking into account the extent of losses, security available and repayment ability.

FSA has a variety of programs available, in addition to the emergency loan program, to help eligible farmers recover from adversity.

USDA has also made other programs available to assist farmers and ranchers, including the Emergency Conservation Program, Federal Crop Insurance and the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program.

Interested farmers may contact their local FSA Service Centers for more information on eligibility requirements and application procedures for these and other programs. Additional information is also available online at: http://disaster.fsa.usda.gov.

EARN MORE IN 2004

It's the holidays again. And talk of food — its great availability, staggering variety, and low cost — is front and center at the American dinner table.

"One of our greatest blessings as Americans is the abundant, affordable and safe food supply we enjoy. As we sit down together ... with family and friends, it is appropriate to remember that it all starts with our farmers and ranchers," Bob Stallman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF), said in a press release Nov. 20.

No argument there. We are truly blessed in this country.

But there is more to the story. One thing that isn't talked about very often these days is how much — or how little — of the food dollar actually goes to the American farmer.

What is the farmer's share of the food dollar?

Take a wild guess:

A) Four dimes, one nickel, and two pennies? (Nope. Hasn't been that much since 1952.)

B) One quarter, one dime, and two pennies? (Not since 1980.)

C) Three dimes? (Wrong again. Farmers haven't seen three dimes out of the food dollar since 1990.)

You're getting warmer, though. The answer, according to the USDA, is 19 cents: One dime, one nickel, and four pennies.

Except for a few upward blips, mainly in the late 1960s and early 1970s, the farm share of the food dollar has been falling steadily for more than half a century now, reports USDA's Economic Research Service.

If farmers today receive only 19 cents of the food dollar, what becomes of the remaining 81 cents?

It goes to pay what USDA calls the "marketing bill." That is the cost of labor, packaging, transportation, energy, profits, advertising, and other expenses involved in getting food from farm to table.

"The estimated bill for marketing domestic farm foods which does not include imported foods — was $498 billion in 1999," reports USDA's Agriculture Fact Book, 2001-2002. "These rising costs have been the principal factor affecting the rise in consumer food expenditures. From 1990 to 2000, consumer expenditures for farm foods rose $211 billion. Roughly 92 percent of this increase resulted from an increase in the marketing bill."

To clearly illustrate the point, USDA graphic designers in Washington took a one dollar bill and sliced it up like a loaf of bread. The 19-cent "farm value" looks like about enough to make a couple of sandwiches, while the marketing share looks big enough to feed a family, a big family.

The previous edition of the Agricultural Fact Book (1997) also included a graph that shows both the farm and marketing shares of food expenditures from 1970 to

Farm Show 2004 Exhibitor Spotlight

John Deere To Offer 'Variation' At Farm Show

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — John Deere dealers from across Pennsylvania will again be on hand at the Farm Show in Harrisburg this coming January.

Ken Dietz, owner and general manager at Landis Bros., Inc., Lancaster, is coordinating the effort to bring together a number of the state's Deere dealers for the event.

This year, John Deere's display and demonstrations "will be geared not just to the larger farmer, but to the weekend farmer and the larger property owner," Dietz said.

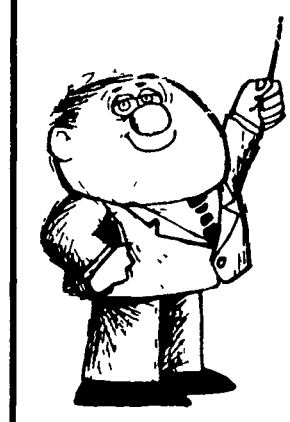
The exhibit will offer "variation and a little bit of something for everybody," he said.

On display will be a model 7920 tractor, one of a new series introduced this year by John Deere. The 170-horsepower, 4-wheel-drive machine has been "totally redesigned" according to Dietz.

John Deere hay tools, including a self-propelled windrower, will be featured as well, Deitz said.

New products from John Deere this year also include a line of all-terrain vehicles (ATVs), and new additions to the Gator line. These utility vehicles will be performing live demonstrations during the three Farmer Days.

"(The Farm Show) serves a need for customers to look at what alternatives and solutions are available for them in their own operations," Deitz said.



A lesson well learned...

Pa. Young Farmer Winter Conference Feb. 3-5

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The Solanco Young Farmers chapter in Quarryville is hosting the annual winter conference of the Pennsylvania Young Farmers, Feb. 3-5 at Willow Valley Conference Center in Lancaster County.

Included will be several tours of local ag businesses and farms.

To register with Willow Valley Hotel, call (800) 369-9877, fax (717) 464-4482, or www.willowvalley.com. Single or double room rate is $79. Triple is $89 with 11 percent tax. Make reservations by Jan. 2.

For more information, call Axel Linde, (717) 529-6963.

Tour Descriptions for the PYFA Winter Conference

Tuesday Morning Optional Tour

• Lancaster's Central Market. This is America's oldest farmers' market, continuously operated since 1730.

The 1889 market building is a Victorian gem, so bring your camera. The tradition of market today is more like an international whirlwind of foods from here and around the world. The aisles are filled with a wonderful harvest of choices from old world and new, from Amish, German, Greek, Caribbean, Middle Eastern, and Slavic backgrounds making Lancaster's Central Market a gathering place so full of life you will never forget the experience.

Tuesday's Afternoon Tours

• Oak Shade Cheese Plant. This family operated business began on the family farm in 1979, moving to a production plant in March 2002. Milk is processed into either Cheddar or Colby cheese. Most is made for farmers who then direct-market the product. To meet consumer demand, cheese can be packaged in sizes ranging from eight ounces to forty pounds. This is a modern, small production facility averaging about five tons of cheese per month. It is operated without electricity.

• Marlin Brubaker Car And Tractor Collection. Brubaker has a car in his collection to represent each decade of the 20th century. He collects "special" cars, not cars of a particular make. Probably the most special car is a 1965 Austin Princess that was owned by Queen Elizabeth. A 1918 Rumley truck (serial #139) is one of the more unusual pieces in his collection (and yes, it runs). The newest car in the collection is a 1996 Lincoln Towncar, eight-passenger limousine. His collection of 26 Allis Chalmers tractors ranges from a Model U, which was the first tractor with rubber tires, to a D19 that he purchased new in 1962 and is still used on the farm, adding more hours to the 16,000 already on the meter.

• Ed & Debbie Zug's Farm. The Zugs came to this farm in 1973. The barn has been enlarged and remodeled since then to improve cow comfort and labor efficiency. This is an excellent example of a Lancaster County family farm.

Ed, Deb, and their son Brian farm 150 acres and milk 50 cows in the stalls.

A milk house water disposal system was installed several years ago to put the wastewater in the pasture. The most recent improvement is the installation of a stationary TMR mixer.

Wednesday's Ladies Program

The ladies will meet at 9 a.m. and give out door prizes. They will then board the busses to travel to Omar and Sylvia Petersheim's Quilt Shop in Bird-in-Hand to tour their operation. They will explain the history of the many different styles of quilts. They have beautiful quilts done in various styles and colors.

Lunch will be at The Kling House in the Kitchen Kettle Village. After lunch, tour members can shop at Kitchen Kettle Village and the many other fine shops in Intercourse. The tour group will return to Willow Valley about 4:30 p.m.

Thursday's Morning Tours

• Case New Holland. This plant traces its beginnings to 1895, when machinist and inventor Abe Zimmerman founded a two-man machinery repair shop. The shop began producing corn mills. In 1903, the company was incorporated as the New Holland Company. Following the Great Depression, the company began producing the New Holland baler, which was the first commercially successful, automatic pick-up self-tie baler.

• Kemp's Foods. A division of Crowley Foods, Kemp's modern plant manufactures ice cream under the Green's and Hagan labels. They also produce novelty ice cream items, including sandwiches, nutty buddies, bullet pops, sundae cups, and various assorted stick pops. They continue to package milk under the PenSupreme label.

• Mascot Mill. The earliest mill at this site was built in the 1700s, and milling was continuously carried on at this location until 1977. Today the Ressler Mill Foundation operates the mill. Water-powered turbines provide power for the mill, which is a fully operable roller mill. If all goes well, they will be grinding corn meal in February.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

dairy solids content of these items. This way one can compare MPC imports with domestic milk production, CCC purchases, cheese production, etc.

The other thing I have been bothered about is quantifying supply and demand in terms of actual components. The old way of doing things is to look at "milk equivalents." Not only does this approach not work, but it does not always reflect all trade (for instance, where are imports of chocolate block in USDA's supply and demand estimates?).

It is the components in milk and dairy products that drive prices. Producers are now paid on the basis of milk components. It is the component prices that drive the milk checks. Processors buy components from farmers and fashion them into products they sell. Yet the dairy industry has not come up with a method of adding up and tracing components through the entire U.S. dairy industry.

Well, I did. I'll use this system to compute my own supply and demand tables. That way I'll know what the actual supply and demand factors are that drive milk prices.

OK, that brings us to the hearing. I used this new and enhanced model to look at trade and domestic supply and demand. Here is what I found:

- Yes, imports of all dairy products have been rising relative to exports.
- Yes, imports of MPC have been rising in recent years and tariffs have been very low.
- The U.S. is a net importer of high-value protein and butterfat, and a net exporter of lower valued other dairy solids (whey and lactose).
- MPC imports had nothing to do with volatility of domestic U.S. milk prices. Sorry, but the data does supports this conclusion. That's not to say that higher MPC imports could have more impact in the future. However, over the last six years, its impact on U.S. cheese production and U.S. milk prices has been negligible.
- MPC imports contributed very little to higher CCC purchases of nonfat dry milk. In fact, most of the tremendous increase in CCC purchases of nonfat dry milk over the last six years had nothing to do with MPC imports. It's due to a market imbalance of protein and other dairy solids (we produce more than we consume).
- The price support program is an inflexible government program that is preventing the U.S. dairy industry from pursuing a real market for value-added milk proteins. Sorry, but again, the data supports this. We are moving more and more skim solids into the dairy price support program. Why? Because it is simple, cost effective, and provides very little risk to processors. These purchases by the government are simply not going to be sustainable in the future. It would be better to find a domestic market for these skim solids (such as MPC and casein).

My objective is to provide sound science to the U.S. dairy industry and to help farmers, processors, consumers, and government leaders better understand trade and its impact on the U.S. dairy industry. It is clear that dairy trade is now significant relative to the supply and demand balance that drives farm gate milk prices. The industry needs to do a better job of monitoring the trade fundamentals. I hope to provide this type of information.

I will not have a column next week because I'll be traveling to Europe. I'll be working with five cooperatives in rural Moldova as a volunteer with the Citizens Network for Foreign Affairs (www.cnfa.org). No, I won't be basking in the Mediterranean sun, or shopping in Paris. Instead I'll be living in rural farm houses with no running water and very little heat. I hope to send you two reports while I'm in eastern Europe.

Have a great holiday season!

culture will continue to ensure that animals are cared for in a safe, humane, and healthy manner.

- Environmental stewardship. Agriculture, government, and pubic influence will continue to drive environmental stewardship as a top priority for American agriculture. Agricultural producers are establishing management practices that conserve natural resources, not only on their farms but also in their watershed. Government support and regulations significantly influence these practices.
- Workforce development. Vocational and/or professional training and job incentives are increasingly more critical in order to attract workers to the Agricultural industry. Farmers must become highly trained managers or be willing to enlist the services of a management team. Outsourcing of work will become necessary in many operations.
- Food safety. Emphasis on food safety for the public will create new requirements (imposed by the industry and the government) for the production phase through the processing, shipping, and sales phase. It is likely that American agriculture will soon be expected to abide by a "zero tolerance" food safety program. This type of program will be implemented both for public health and safety and national security.
- Agriculture's contributions to energy production. Agriculture will have an increasing impact on consuming and generating energy. New technologies will create opportunities for agriculture to produce energy at the farm level to help sustain and support community growth.
- Increased public influence. There is an ongoing public interest in agriculture that ranges from land stewardship to animal welfare to food production and to packaging. As the number of "farmers" shrink and the number of "nonfarmers" continue to grow, those who do not farm will have more time to become educated and react to issues. Not only does the public have time on their side, but they also have numbers; therefore, it is inevitable that they will be able to yield substantial influence. Therefore, the agricultural industry will continue to become pro-active, educating and working with the public rather than re-active, a response that can create distrust and isolation.

Farm-City Event Promotes Understanding Between Urbanists, Agriculturalists

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — "Dave Bomberger is a modern Renaissance man. He's an economist, chemist, biologist, dairy herd manager, and much more," said Marc Hess, a lawyer who recently spent a day on Bomberger's Lebanon County dairy farm.

Farm-City exchangees Hess and Bomberger vowed to tell neither lawyer nor manure jokes, but managed to elicit plenty of laughter from the audience attending the Lebanon County Farm-City banquet Tuesday evening at the Lebanon Valley Expo Center.

The exchangees told of their bumbling efforts to fit into each other's world, and of gaining a deeper appreciation of each other's job during the annual exchange.

More than 400 other city and agricultural folks also got to know each other a bit better through the annual Farm-City banquet sponsored by the Lebanon Valley Chamber of Commerce and ag-related industry.

According to Harriet Faren, president of the chamber, a positive perception is the purpose of the program founded in the 1980s to foster communication between the two diverse sectors, both vital for successful community growth.

In addition to the farm-city exchange, both urban and agriculture residents work together to recognize farms, businesses, and individuals who contribute to the rich heritage of the county.

E. Fay Bowman and her daughter Sue received a Century Farm Award. Their 106-acre farm dates back to 1901, and has been passed on through the generations. E. Fay and her husband J. Alfred farmed the land from 1946 until the 1990s. Her husband passed away in 2000. Mother and daughter continue to live on the farm and have the fieldwork completed by Don Hoffer.

In August 2002, the Bowman farm marked the celebration of 6,000 acres of farmland preservation in Lebanon County.

"Opting to preserve your farm in many cases literally means passing up the opportunity to become a millionaire, but there are more important things to the quality of life than money," said Sue, deputy executive director of the Lebanon County Housing Authority, regarding the family's decision to place the property in farmland preservation.

She has a brother John who resides in Panama, where he is retired from the Panama Canal Commission as deputy director of treaty affairs.

A century business award went to Charles Henry III, attorney at law for Henry & Beaver LLP.

Harry Bachman auctioned a shawl woven by the Lebanon Valley Woolsies. Barbara Hehnly designed the shawl, and with the help of three spinners and a weaver, the shawl was made on Tuesday for the event. The wool

Don Hoffer pays $625 for the bittersweet patterned shawl to present to his wife Shirley. Barbara Hehnly, left, designed the shawl that her team of three spinners and weavers made during the Farm-City banquet. Hehnly said it was the highest price ever bid in the annual auction to raise funds for the Farm-City banquet event. Hoffer holds grandson Dakota, son of Darren and Kristen Grumbine.

A Century Farm Award goes to daughter-mother duo Sue and E. Fay Bowman, center. Charles Wertz of the Lebanon County Conservation District and Barbara Grumbine, farmer and real estate agent, make the presentation.

The annual Penn State Hybrid Reports are part and parcel of the Jan. 31 issue of Corn Talk in Lancaster Farming. Also scheduled is a feature from a Columbia County 5-Acre Corn Club winner, silage reports, meeting updates, and a calendar of crop growing and management events.

and past Master of the Pennsylvania State Grange.

However, the most important people present were the dairy farmers. One by one, the dairy farmers told the same story concerning the economic crunch they were feeling on their farms.

Under questioning from the chair, they all acknowledged they needed between $16 and $18 per CWT on an annual basis to maintain their farms. All of them agreed that imports of dairy ingredients and dairy products coming into the U.S. had to be curbed. All but one of the presenters said they would support milk supply management providing the dairy imports were limited and a right price was paid to the dairy farmers.

The need for a new pricing formula based on the average cost of production rang loud and clear throughout the hall. The need for a new pricing formula came from all the dairy farmers as well as businessmen who testified, such as Butch Gow, Chuck Place, Eric Emmerich, and Dave Derr from Blue Seal.

Also, three consumers presented their views to the audience. They exhibited their concern for the injustice that was happening at the farm level. Two Methodist ministers, Rev. Bill Reed from Tunkhannock and Rev. Cheryl Cavalari from Trucksville, were appalled that many dairy farmers were suffering the way they are. Ed Pavilski, a consumer from Scranton, took the stand to talk about the fact that consumers are taking for granted their food supply. Pavilski urged all consumers to back the efforts of the local dairy farmers as they attempt to insure consumers of a safe food supply.

Gil Gilespie from Corwell University related to the psychological impact local dairy farmers are suffering from low milk prices. Privately, some of the guests present told me they heard things today that they were not aware of.

Certainly everyone knows that one milk hearing, as good as it was, will not solve the dairy farmers' plight. However, we are confident that other events will be held to keep the ball alive. Already, other hearings are being planned for the Syracuse, N.Y. area as well as Bradford or Tioga County in Pennsylvania.

The average dairy farmer has had it — they want changes! The next editorial will list the dairy farmers who testified. Remember, they are the important ones.

Attention Dairy Farmers: The dairy market loss payments will begin again on January 2004 production.

Do you like green onions and ham?

Someone may want to consider revising Dr. Seuss' popular children's book, "Green Eggs and Ham," after the recent hepatitis A outbreaks that have been linked to Mexican green onions. More than 1,000 people have become ill, and three have died, from the viral disease in Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Georgia, and North Carolina, and all the illnesses have been linked to green onions grown in Mexico.

Recently, a national reporter asked our organization what consumers should look for at the produce counter to protect themselves from food borne illness. Certainly, consumers can thoroughly wash and cook their fresh fruits and vegetables before serving. Beyond that, consumers are not allowed many other choices. Most grocery stores do not provide information to consumers so that they may differentiate between meat and produce grown in the United States or grown in other countries such as Mexico.

Although mandatory country-of-origin labeling (COOL) cannot prevent hepatitis A or any other food borne illness, it would help reassure consumers and our markets. Since the Food and Drug Administration has warned consumers against eating green onions, continued uncertainty could hurt the industry. Instead of reacting to all produce when food safety concerns arise, with country-of-origin labeling, consumers would be armed with information to make educated decisions instead of decisions based on fear and doubt. It is a consumer's right to make these choices.

In addition, mandatory country-of-origin labeling would allow U.S. agricultural producers to differentiate themselves from countries that may have disease or food safety concerns. Mandatory COOL would provide an opportunity for the United States to expand the level of consumer choice, confidence, and knowledge in the retail marketplace and potentially increase the demand for U.S. origin commodities.

Recent events like the hepatitis A outbreak and the case of Canadian BSE should encourage all consumers, farmers, and ranchers to stand united to make sure mandatory country-of-origin food labeling is implemented. Before the Senate returns in January to decide the fate of this beneficial law, your lawmakers need to hear from you.

I do like green onions and ham.

Especially when they're labeled by Uncle Sam!

Secretary Wolff Discusses Dairy Plan In Northwest Pa.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Secretary of Agriculture Dennis C Wolff met with dairy farmers from Erie, Warren, and Crawford counties to discuss the Department of Agricultures new Dairy Action Plan and Center for Dairy Excellence.

"Through these regional dairy meetings and other outreach efforts, it is my hope that we can move Pennsylvanias dairy industry forward and make dairy farms more competitive and profitable," said Wolff. "Meetings like this one in Erie County help us to understand the challenges and needs of farmers in all areas of the Commonwealth."

Wolff, a dairy farmer from Columbia County, created a 40-member Dairy Task Force in July. The Dairy Task Force developed the Dairy Action Plan, which coordinates existing dairy services to meet the needs of the states dairy industry.

The Department is also creating a Web-based resource library for farmers, containing information about farms for sale or rent, programs for economic development assistance, sample business plans, marketing opportunities, risk-management assistance and more.

SCHNUPP'S Flame KISSED

ROASTING IS SUPERIOR TO OTHER METHODS OF HEAT PROCESSED GRAIN

~ IT'S ECONOMICAL - The cost to operate a flame roaster is lower than other types of processing equipment This makes roasting grain a more efficient method

~ IT PURIFIES - Only a flame roaster can effectively remove molds and reduce toxins to tolerant levels As the individual grain rotates through the open flame, the mold dust around it is destroyed

~ IT'S UNIFORM - Having the grain pass through the open flame and properly steeped, gives it a uniform treatment

~ IT'S PROFITABLE - Custom roasting on your farm
*Gives you the ability to feed your own grain, not someone else's
* Eliminates trucking expenses
* No mill charges shrinkage, storage and handling
* When grain needs to be purchased, you can have it roasted on your farm and know how it is processed

Cooperative Extension Appoints New Members At Banquet

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — The Somerset County Cooperative Extension Association appointed four new members during its annual banquet and meeting in November at the Masonic Temple in Somerset. There were more than 90 people attending.

The board consists of 18 members. New members were elected for a three-year term: John Kreger Jr. of Kingwood, Rick Sechler of Meyersdale, Charlene McWilliams of Friedens, and Carl Ickes of Windber. Two additional members will be appointed by the board at their next meeting.

Kreger represents the Upper Turkeyfoot Township and Rockwood area. He has a 298-acre beef and hog operation and also grows corn, oats, and hay. Kreger is active in community projects and serves as a volunteer fireman for New Centerville Volunteer Fire Department.

Rick Sechler represents the Meyersdale area and is owner and operator of Laurel Sport Shop in Meyersdale. Sechler serves as a nine-year leader of Buffalo Creek 4-H Club and has served as a key leader. His interest is in youth programs.

McWilliams represents the Geiger-Friedens area and she is a co-owner and operator of a 180-cow dairy operation. McWilliams served as a 4-H dairy club leader for nine years and serves on the Somerset County Holstein Association Board.

Ickes represents the Windber, Hooversville, and Paint Township area. He is a former employee of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture as a food inspector. He serves as the extension board representative on the family living advisory committee.

John Ferko, who serves as president of the board, congratulated the new board members during the banquet. Michael Carr, who was also in attendance, has the position of vice president. Cindy Walker is secretary and Gloria Lohr is treasurer.

Staff members recognized were Dorothy Bromley, director; Miguel Saviroff, farm management agent; Joanne Stoltzfus, 4-H and youth development agent; and Agnes Roland and Karen Serball, both nutritional links representatives.

Linda Johnson, administrative assistant, was also honored for 15 years service. Kathy Dwyer, secretary, was honored for 10 years of service.

Several people from the community shared how cooperative extension has touched their lives through programs in 4-H, family living, and agriculture. They included Heather Will, a member of Country Clovers 4-H Club and Somerset County Lamb and Wool Queen; Karen Gibson, an instructional support teacher in Maple Ridge Elementary School in Somerset Area School District; and Gary Lambert, a greenhouse operator of Lambert Mountain Acres in the Central City area.

The attendees could also view educational displays on home gardening, 4-H, child care, diabetes awareness, West Nile Virus, farm management, food safety, and youth entrepreneurship.

Also, Angela Dice and Ben Gardner, both 4-H Foods Revue participants, hosted the social time before the event and gave everyone an opportunity to try foods from the 4-H event.

Keith Largent, Berlin, a local recording artist, provided musical selections during the meal.

David Filson, regional director for cooperative extension in the south central region, recognized outgoing board members, Diane Wagner, Michael Carr, and Steven Hoffman for their contributions to the extension program.

"Many people have been rewarded either as an individual or part of a project when working with cooperative extension," said Filson. "There are not any people who have affected the farming community clientele for the better than cooperative extension."

ANIMAL HEALTH ISSUES A FOCAL POINT FOR CONSUMERS, PRODUCERS

Galen Kopp
Extension Agent
Dairy/Livestock
Lebanon County

The hardships faced by European producers with the spread of foot-and-mouth disease (FMD) are a prime example of the importance of biosecurity for production agriculture in today's global and mobile environment.

Here in the U.S., Johne's Disease is another prime example, as the disease silently robs economic returns before producers even suspect a problem.

There are consumer issues at stake. While there is no conclusive evidence, researchers are examining the similarity between Johne's Disease and human Crohn's Disease, as both are chronic intestinal diseases. Epidemiological studies have not established any connection between human contact with Johne's-infected animals and Crohn's. Moreover, pasteurization and proper cooking eliminate opportunities for contamination. But there is a public concern about the potential link between the two. This is why the industry needs to document success in identifying and controlling such diseases.

Biosecurity is defined as management practices which prevent introduction of disease onto the farm or its spread within the farm. Such preventive management practices begin with awareness. Unfortunately, recent surveys conducted by the National Animal Health Monitoring Service (NAHMS) indicate that about half of all dairy producers are unfamiliar with diseases such as Johne's.

NAHMS estimates that at least 22 percent of the nation's dairy herds have cows infected with Johne's. The cost is more than $200 per cow in inventory each year, due mostly to decreased milk production and premature culling.

This disease is easy to miss unless you investigate for it. Just because you do not see it doesn't mean it isn't there. What makes the disease so challenging is that it has a long incubation period and progresses slowly. If symptoms do appear (long-lasting diarrhea and weight loss, despite good appetite), they are often confused with other illnesses. And they often occur after a stressful event such as calving, which further confuses diagnosis.

The primary route of transmission for Johne's and other diseases within a herd is fecal contamination. Biosecurity measures aimed at reducing or eliminating contamination of calves through fecal matter and colostrum are the most powerful tools available.

To prevent the spread of disease between animals on your farm:

- Cows should calve in clean, uncrowded pens, which have been sanitized between occupants.
- Feed bunks and troughs should be used for feeding and watering all stock on the farm.
- Different equipment should be used for handling feed and manure.
- Udders and teats should be cleaned thoroughly before collecting colostrum.
- Feed only colostrum from Johne's-negative dams.

Testing is an important tool, but since none of the tests available today are 100 percent accurate for identifying Johne's, consult with your veterinarian to determine if a problem exists and design an effective management plan for your farm.

When a new animal is purchased, the entire disease history of the farm of origin is purchased along with it.

To minimize the risk of introducing disease:

- Purchase only test-negative animals from documented low-risk herds.
- When purchasing groups of animals for expansion, have your veterinarian discuss herd health records with the veterinarian of the herd of origin.
- Isolate and quarantine new animals.
- Practice thorough sanitation of facilities and require it for people coming onto your farm.
- Use a planned vaccination program as recommended by the herd veterinarian based on herd health history. Few diseases can be eradicated through treatment alone.
- For some diseases, but generally not for Johne's, vaccination programs can help manage the impact, but are not 100 percent effective.
- Strategic culling is often necessary to improve herd health and prevent re-introduction of disease.

came from a Romney/Corriedale cross, and the design is one of a kind.

Don Hoffer, crop farmer, placed the top bid of $625 to present the shawl to his wife Shirley.

The price was the most ever paid in the event's 15-year history. The auctioned monies help pay the expenses of the banquet.

During the reception before the banquet, many commodity groups offered free samples and literature to attendees. Numerous door prizes were also awarded through a drawing.

Lancaster DHIA Survives Growing Pains

Lancaster Farming Staff

SMOKETOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster DHIA members gathered at the Good 'N' Plenty Restaurant Tuesday for the annual meeting. As noted by Steve Hershey, president of Lancaster DHIA, the year marked an "interesting one" for the organization.

"A wise man once said, 'save me from an interesting life,'" said Hershey. "An interesting day is usually a day that does not go well.... This has been an interesting year at Lancaster DHIA. An interesting year, however, is not all bad. It has been a strong year."

Lancaster DHIA reported that 2003 was an expansion year with the addition of 588 herds; the inclusion of service in Bradford, Tioga, Susquehanna, Blair, and Bedford counties; and the in house processing of reports.

As Hershey noted, "expansion is expensive."

For the 2003 budget year, Lancaster DHIA experienced a loss, which is credited to the expansion project that took place this year.

Rodney Denlinger, treasurer, stressed that he was not concerned over the losses.

"Am I particularly concerned about the loss? We planned on it. Is it going to happen again? No. The budget this year calls for a surplus at the end of the year," said Denlinger.

"While I don't like to see a negative financial statement, we did have a successful year. We achieved our goals. Next year we are going to achieve them again."

Because of expansion efforts, Lancaster DHIA experienced a growth of 588 herds, bringing the total to 2,809 herds on test in 2003. Average number of cows on test for 2003 is 162,711 cows, an 11 percent increase from 2002.

With the increases in herds and numbers, Hershey stresses the focus in 2004 needs to be service to the herds that they serve.

In addition to the expansion in herds and service territory, May marked the beginning of in-house printing.

Hershey noted that "the technology finally caught up with the dream," and since its implementation it has gone very smoothly.

Lancaster DHIA is excited about the upcoming year.

"I am excited about the future," said Jay Mylin, manager. "I know that we had some glitches in financial end this year. But, the growth we actually budgeted for, and we knew it was going to be a tight year. We are in a positive situation now and we are going to have a great year."

Several herds were recognized for their production at the meeting. High production breed awards went to Ayrshire, Don and Pam Gable, Elverson, with 19,793 pounds of milk; Brown Swiss, Vision Genetics, Mount Joy, with 25,268 pounds of milk; Guernsey, Millie and Jim Widman, Kirkwood, with 17,265 pounds of milk; Holstein, Spring Valley Farm, Manheim, with 32,649 pounds; and Jersey, Tol-Je-So Farm, Port Deposit, Md., with 19,813.

The high protein herd award was given to Nevin Horning, Lititz.

The low somatic cell count (SCC) award winner was Steven Herr of New Providence.

Lancaster DHIA also recognized Tom Lapp, Gap, for his service on the board of directors.

Tom Lapp, center was recognized for his service to the board at the meeting. From left, Jay Mylin, general manager and Steve Hershey, board president.

Number Of Infected Trees Declines

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Secretary of Agriculture Dennis C Wolff recently announced that the Department of Agriculture has almost eliminated the Plum Pox Virus (PPV), which was first identified attacking stone fruit trees in south central Pennsylvania in the fall of 1999.

"We are thrilled that over a four-year period, PPV numbers have decreased by 97 percent, with only 11 detections in 2003," said Wolff. "The numbers had reached 399 in 2000."

Woff said, "This year, we increased our quarantine zone to include a small portion of Menallen and Butler townships in Adams County where the virus was discovered this summer. In doing this, we hope to contain the spread and eliminate this virus once and for all."

barns, the manure pit is divided into sections, lengthwise. Since the hogs tend to deposit about two-thirds of their manure in the center section, the outside pits fill much more slowly with fresh manure. Manure will be pumped from the central area to the digester, and eventually returned for storage in the pits along the edge.

That system should eliminate the need for a one-million gallon outside manure holding tank, according to Caressa Crone.

But that's just one benefit the Crones hope to gain from the new setup.

They expect manure odors to be reduced by about 90 percent, and for most of the facilities' electrical needs to be supplied by the biogas-run generator.

The digester itself consists of a circular, concrete tank, 12 feet deep and 42 feet across, where manure will stay for about a month during the digestion process. Biogas will be collected in an inflatable bag directly above the digester and burned in a 350 cubic-inch Chevrolet engine to generate electricity.

The digester tank is divided into two sections. In the first, a "complete mix digestion" takes place, at a temperature of about 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Manure flows into the second section of the tank via a spillway. From this chamber, manure is pumped to the pits for storage.

Digester construction began this fall. The Crones expect to start the digestion process next spring when the weather warms up, according to Stanley Crone. Some heat may need to be added to start the digestion, but once it is operating, the process will generate its own heat.

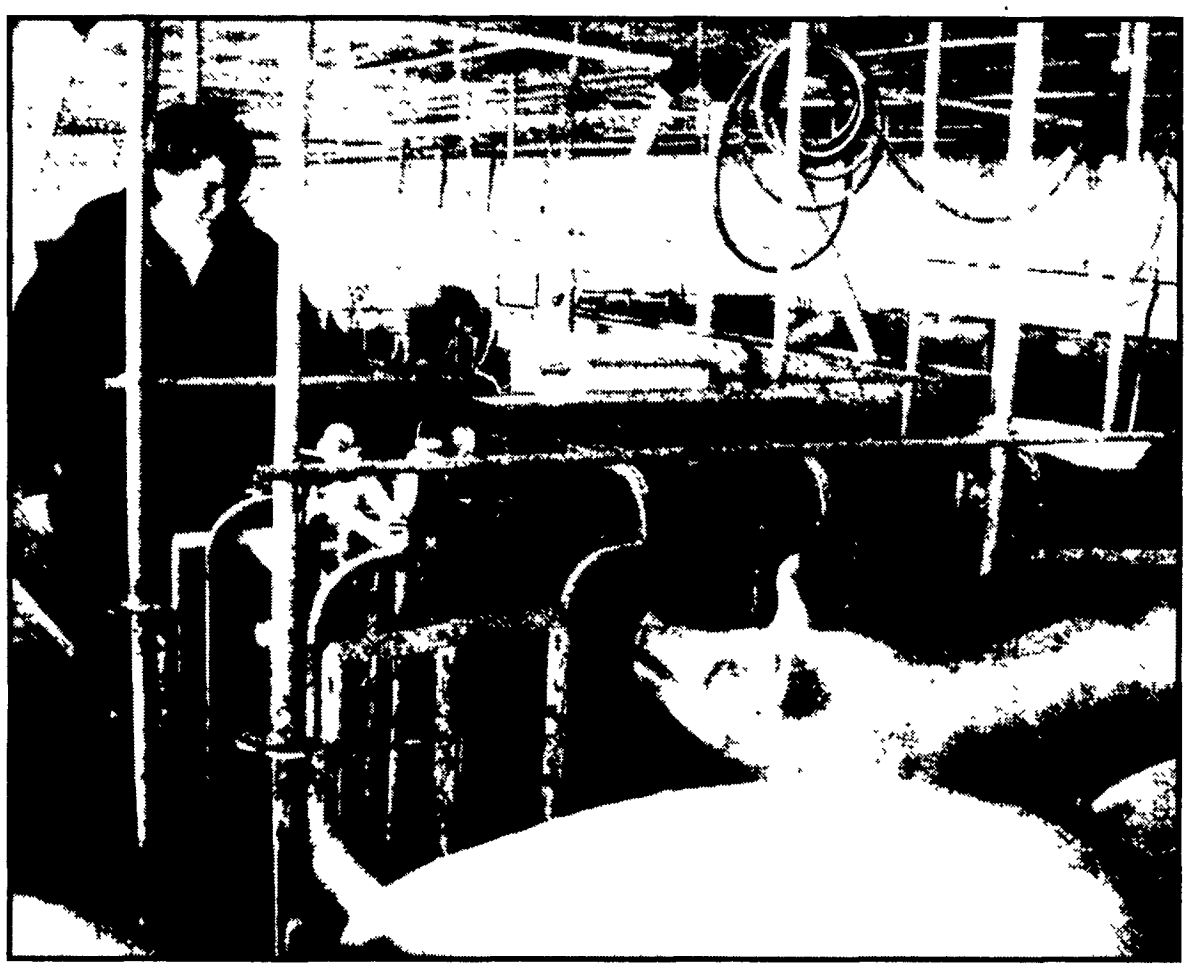
Digestion of the manure continues to some extent even after it has left the digester, according to Robb Meinen, Penn State senior extension associate who is monitoring the project.

Many details remain to be seen about just how well the process will work and how efficient it will be.

But the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has enough confidence in the $256,000 project to contribute about $75,000 toward its construction and monitoring. Penn State is involved in developing and monitoring the project. Also contributing some funds are the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection, the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council, and Wengers Feeds. Schick Enterprises of Kutztown is the contractor.

Ken Kephart, Penn State animal science professor, conducted a feasibility study earlier this year for the project, which he called "The Development of a Novel Anaerobic Digester System."

"The new design will clearly reduce capital requirements, but careful analysis and performance monitoring will be needed to judge the feasibility of this approach," Kephart reported. "Based on our preliminary assumptions of total project cost, available grants, anticipated electrical generation, and debt service, annual expenses are expected to exceed revenue estimates by about $4,000 per year."



Caressa Crone interacts with pigs in the finishing barn. The scale shown here is used for sorting hogs as they near market size. At sorting time, the pigs must pass through the scale in order to reach the feeding station. A computer-controlled gate separates the animals by weight.

Kephart noted some factors which could change the economic returns include reduction of manure volume collected because of a lower than expected amount of manure deposited over collection lanes, lower than expected biogas output, and excess electrical generation during times of relatively low electrical demand on the farm.

Any extra electricity would be sold to the utility company at 2 cents per kilowatt hour (KWH), compared to a 10 cent per KWH purchase price, according to Kephart.

Meinen noted that extra electricity generated might also be used to pre-heat "attic air" in the hog barns to supplement the gas heat system already in place.

As far as the hog finishing barns already in operation, Caressa Crone is pleased with the labor-saving automatic sorting setup and the open floor plan.

"It certainly lends itself to (the hogs) being more comfortable, with freedom to eat when they want and wander around," she said.

As hogs near finish weight, sorting them for shipping can be done with a relatively small amount of hassle, compared to the old way of "physically pushing them around," Crone said.

At sorting time, the pigs must pass through an electronic scale in order to reach the feeding station. A computer-controlled gate separates the animals by weight.

Hogs from one side of a barn (about 550 animals) can be sorted in two 12-hour periods, according to Crone.

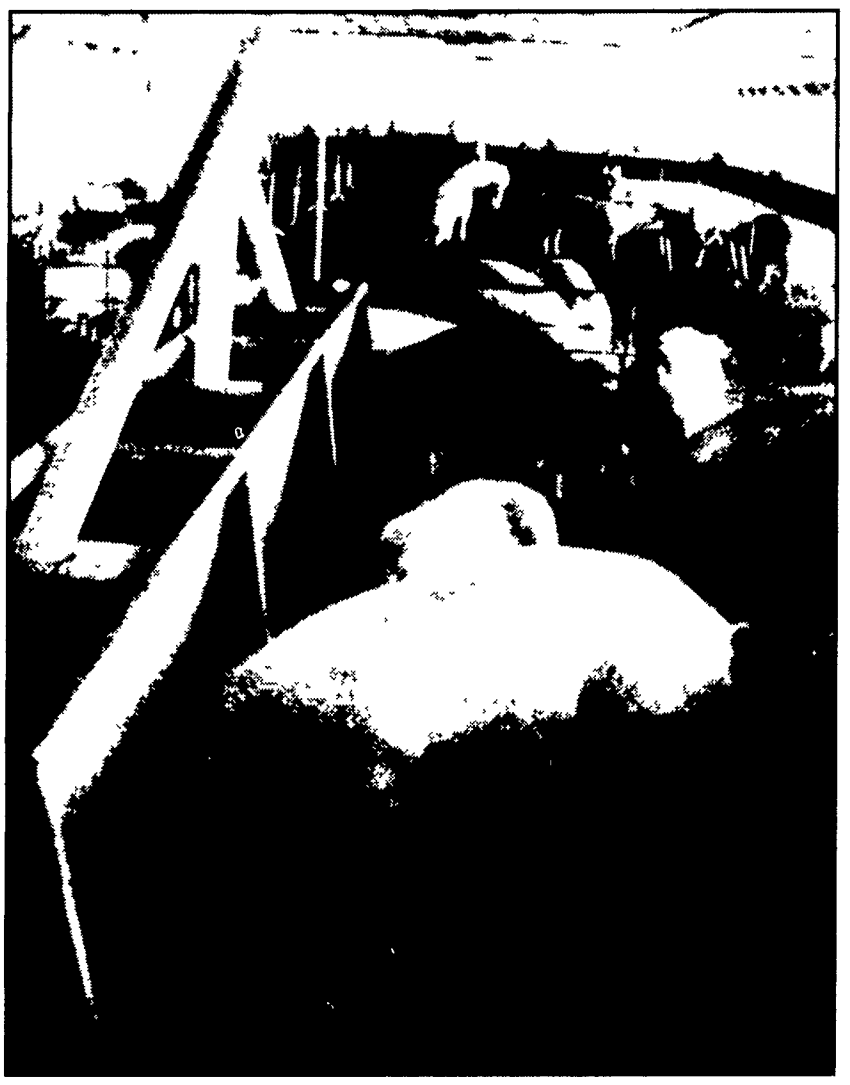
A scale for sorting is located in the center of each half of the barns, with are divided lengthwise. The hogs have more mobility in the Crones' barns than in many conventional modern facilities. The extra activity raises the question of whether daily weight gains could be reduced by the setup.

But Crone believes that labor savings and being able to target the optimum finish weight (247-257 pounds) offsets any sacrifice in weight gains.

"We figure whatever we lose in weight gain, we gain it back by shipping during the premium window," she said.

Crone also likes easy access to the animals.

The open floor plan "allows us to really get in there and be involved with the pigs," she said.



The feeding station is located in the center of the pen, along with the sorting scale and gates. At the far end of the barn, you can see how manure is deposited mostly in the middle, away from the edges of the building where the animals sleep. The manure pit under the slatted floor is divided, so the outside sections fill much more slowly with fresh manure. Manure will be pumped from the central area to the digester, and eventually returned for storage in the pits along the edge. These hogs are almost finished, and many from the original group have already been shipped to the packer.

Farm Show Opens In One Month

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Just one month from today, Gov. Edward G. Rendell and Secretary of Agriculture Dennis C. Wolff will officially open the 88th Pennsylvania Farm Show at the newly remodeled and expanded Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

"The Farm Show Complex will accommodate greater numbers of exhibitors and visitors than ever before, with more than one million square feet under roof," said Wolff. "The complex is the commonwealth's premier exposition, exhibition, convention, and special events facility and one of the top five such facilities in the country."

The annual show is the largest indoor agricultural event in the U.S., accommodating more than 250 commercial exhibitors and an estimated 350,000 visitors throughout the week. This year, more than 8,000 exhibitors are expected to showcase top-quality livestock and farm products. They will have the opportunity to earn more than $335,023 in prize money during the show.

"There are many things that bring people to the Farm Show, and one is the delicious Pennsylvania foods available at our Food Court," said Wolff. "This year's show will have all of the traditional Farm Show favorites, including milkshakes, baked potatoes, and beef and pork barbeque sandwiches. There is something for everyone at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. This is a great event for the entire family."

Wolff said the Farm Show will feature a number of educational opportunities and hands-on activities for children.

The 2004 Pennsylvania Farm Show runs Jan. 10-17, from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. Additional information can be found at www.agriculture.state.pa.us/fscomplex/site/default.asp or by calling (717) 787-5373.

Department Of Agriculture Announces Counties Selected For 2004 Chemsweep

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Secretary of Agriculture Dennis C Wolff today announced that 21 counties have been chosen for the 2004 CHEMSWEEP Program. This program is designed to provide businesses licensed to apply pesticides with the means to properly dispose of canceled, suspended, or unwanted pesticide products.

The counties identified for collections of pesticides in the summer of 2004 are Adams, Armstrong, Butler, Carbon, Clarion, Cumberland, Dauphin, Elk, Jefferson, Lancaster, Lawrence, Lebanon, Lehigh, Lycoming, Mifflin, Somerset, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Tioga, Venango, and Wayne.

"Before CHEMSWEEP began in 1992, there wasn't a cost effective way for people to dispose of unwanted pesticides properly," Wolff said. "We are now taking the necessary measures to ensure that these chemicals do not harm the environment."

Pesticides control, kill, or mitigate pest organisms and can include herbicides, fungicides, insecticides, and reodenticides. The products are classified as Universal Waste Pesticides and will be collected, transported, and disposed of in accordance with all applicable rules and regulations.

"At no cost to the business, CHEMSWEEP provides central collection sites where people are asked to drop off unwanted pesticides, or the hazardous waste disposal company under contract by PDA will collect the pesticides directly from the storage location," Wolff said.

PASA's Farming For Future Conference Feb. 5-7

90-minute workshops and four specialized, daylong intensive sessions will make the 2004 conference a groundbreaking event for sustainable ag enthusiasts, who last year came from all over Pennsylvania and 21 other states. Farmers will find it easy to build a track to suit their specialties including dairy, livestock, poultry, vegetables, fruit, policy, and marketing.

Preconference

For the first time, this year's conference will feature a three-day format. The additional day (Thursday) is in response to many attendees' expressed desire for more time with their friends and colleagues of common interest. The preconference day also offers participants an opportunity for more in-depth study in four defined tracks: new and beginning farmers, women in agriculture, small ruminants, and timber framing.

On Thursday evening, Canadian farmer Percy Schmeiser will be the featured dinner speaker. He will chronicle a case revolving around a major manufacturing's claim for patent infringement because a neighbor's genetically modified Canola cross-pollinated hundreds of acres of Schmeiser's own crops. Details of this story will be unfolding at the time of the conference since Schmeiser will have just had his case heard by the Canadian Supreme Court.

Livestock And Dairy

This year's conference workshops offer a strong lineup of livestock experts. Nationally known bovine genetic specialist Gerald Fry will offer his tips for selecting bulls that will improve your herd. Jim and LeeAnn Van Der Pol from Pastures-a-Plenty Company and Farm in Minnesota will share success stories from their pastured hog enterprise. Jack and Anne Lazor of Butterworks Farm in Vermont will present their whole-farm approach to dairy farming, and offer expert advice on how to market value-added dairy products.

As another special feature this year, the American Pastured Poultry Producers Association will be hosting its annual meeting at the PASA Conference. Distinguished members of APPPA will offer five workshops to conference participants who want to get started or improve their pastured poultry operations.

Vegetables, Fruits, And Crops

Among the highlights for produce growers who attend the conference, Paul and Sandy Arnold of Pleasant Valley Farm in New York will detail their annual strawberry bedding system, as well as a whole-farm design for fruit and vegetable production. The Arnolds are well-known for their innovative, low-cost/high-value techniques for growing a broad variety of crops.

Additionally, organic grain producers Mary-Howell and Klaas Martin of Lakeview Organic Grain will help participants identify and develop strategies for minimizing major production problems. From Nesenkeag Cooperative Farm in New Hampshire, SARE educator Eero Ruuttila will share tips on growing specialty crops for market. Ruuttila has the largest organic farm in New Hampshire, producing a wide variety of greens - as many as 100 a season!

Policy And Activism

For those who prefer more attention to agricultural policy issues, one of the more politically stimulating discussions will come from Anuradha Mittal (Food First) and Brian Halweil (World Watch Institute), who will discuss the importance of local organizing in a global economy.

Complementing this theme in a second workshop, Elizabeth Henderson (Peacework Farms) and Richard Mandelbaum (CATA), will share their new research into social justice in the food system and give a vision of what a socially just food system might look like.

As always, the conference program has something for everyone. From seed-saving and beekeeping to regional marketing and women in agriculture, the Farming For the Future conference continues to grow every year in size and popularity because it is so useful to farmers and consumers alike. It gives them practical information for their farms, enlivens the relationships that make any sustainable community flourish, and revives their spirits for another growing season.

This past year, the Pennsylvania Association For Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) kicked off a Farm-to-College program to link farmers and college food service programs across the state.

Heather House, program coordinator, hosted a meeting of farmers and college food directors this week at West Chester University. A total of about 40 people attended the meeting. Food purchasers were on hand from a number of institutions, including Millersville University, West Chester University, Muhlenburg College, Ursinus College, and Swarthmore.

House discussed some farm-to-college projects she has been working on, including one at Slippery Rock University, Butler County, where she earned a master's degree this past spring.

While a student in the Sustainable Systems Program, House coordinated a relationship between local farmers and ARAMARK, Slippery Rock University's food service supplier. ARAMARK agreed to buy at least 10 percent of the food served at the university from local farmers.

Seven area farmers formed a cooperative to provide the food for the university. Logistics were worked out between ARAMARK and the farmers.

"A lot of excitement was generated from that," House said.

There were obstacles to overcome and a lot of learning in the process.

"The very first (local) order we got had slugs in the lettuce," House said. "It was exactly what had to go wrong for us to become committed to the project.

According to House, the program was working well until recently, when ARAMARK lost the university's food service contract. At this point, it will likely take some time for the university to adjust to a new food provider before trying to buy local again, House said.

Farmers at the meeting assured food directors that the products they sell are high quality, safe, and can be delivered to the satisfaction of the college.

College food purchasers meet with farmers to discuss local food buying options.

Jim Stauffer, beef producer and direct-marketer from Lancaster, said that all of his beef can be "source-verified" because calves are raised on the farm and the finished cattle are processed at a local facility.

William Lesher, dairyman and milk bottler from Way-Har Farms, Berk County, said that on-farm processors are subject to the same regulations as large processors.

"We're inspected with the same laws that apply to the biggest dairy in the country," Lesher said.

Lesher said his advantage is in providing a fresher product.

"It's in the cow today and it's in your cooler tomorrow," he said.

House noted ways that colleges can benefit from buying local. Students tend to like the food. Also, good public relations are generated by the college supporting the local economy.

Other schools that are developing farm-to-college markets are Pennsylvania College of Technology in Williamsport and Allegheny College in the northwest part of the state.

The Pennsylvania College of Technology conducted student taste tests comparing milk from a typical university supplier with milk from Milky Way Farms, a dairy farm and bottling operation in Bradford County. Students preferred the milk that came straight from the farm, and boosted their consumption by 30 percent, according to House.

House urged farmers to develop relationships with food directors and staff, and be professional, organized and reliable.

One way to get started, House said, is that farmers can introduce themselves to a food service director and share product samples. They can plan a local food dinner on the campus, feature a local product once a week during harvest, or conduct comparison taste tests.

"Make a commitment and be patient," House said.

House recommended "making a fuss" about local products, getting students excited so that the idea of local food "permeates the culture of the university."

Farmers interested in direct marketing should also make sure they are listed on the Website www.localharvest.org, a resource for purchasers looking for local products.

Scott Bailey, food purchasing manager at Millersville University, coordinates occasional events on campus featuring local food, and is interested in buying more from area farmers.

Educational institutions are reliable customers, he told farmers at the meeting.

"College food services tend to pay their bills, where if you sell to restaurants, you're rolling the dice," Bailey said.

Kassab of Swarthmore noted that college food purchasers do not base their buying decisions on price alone. Quality and timeliness of delivery are also considerations, she said.

Raw, Rugged Power

that's Kubota

Kubota's B2910 Premier 'Plus' compact tractor features increased horsepower (22 PTO HP), heavy-duty construction and easy operation for nursery work, light construction and farm chores. Powered by a quiet-and-clean Kubota E-TVCS diesel engine, the B2910 Premier 'Plus' features deluxe cruise control, high-performance power steering and increased hydraulic power.

The B2910 has an adjustable deluxe seat and a backlit instrument panel for easy day/night monitoring. Three-speed ranges, a dual pump hydraulic system and rear and mid PTO are standard.

A powerful Category I, 3-point hitch handles a variety of performance-matched implements. For greater lift capacity, the performance-matched LA402 loader is easy to operate and is compatible with either 60" or 72" mid-mount mower.

For a rugged, powerful tractor that works as hard as you do, see the Kubota B2910.

Farming On The Edge

1996. The farm value rises only slightly over those 26 years, while the marketing share shoots to the heavens like a steep ski slope.

Both graphics serve as constant reminders of what's wrong with this picture — and what farmers can do about it.

What can farmers do? Simple. Start capturing a much larger share of the food dollar.

How? The answer is two simple words: Direct marketing.

The more farmers sell directly to consumers, the more money is going to go into producer's pockets where, I believe most of us would agree, it rightfully belongs.

That's easier said than done, I know. But it can — and is — being done on more and more farms throughout the region and the country. A few of the more obvious ways include:

- Farmers' markets, especially producer-only farmers' markets.
- Roadside stands.
- Buying clubs, whether you call it Community Supported Agriculture (CSA), a subscription service, or a "members only" on-farm market.

Many efforts are also under way to supply school districts, colleges, hospitals, restaurants, government, and even corporate cafeterias with fresh, local farm products. (More about that in the next column.)

Farmers in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, New York, and New Jersey live within just a few hours driving time of more than 25 million people in some of the biggest cities and richest markets in the entire world.

Looking at the bigger picture, Pennsylvania farmers are within just one day's drive of half the population of the U.S. and about 60 percent of the population of Canada, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Dennis Wolff said at the 5th Annual Future of Our Food and Farms Summit last week in Wilmington, Del.

Wolff said that his family's dairy farm has been actively engaged in direct marketing for 30 years. The challenge facing farmers today, he stressed, is "getting more of the consumers' dollar."

How can we do that? For starters, by changing what we produce, how we produce it, and when we produce it, not just how we sell it. More and more consumers want locally grown often organic fruit, vegetables, meat and dairy products, as fresh from the farm as they can possibly get them, throughout as much of the year as is possible. They are willing to pay, and pay well, for what they want.

Consider vegetable consumption in the U.S. It has increased about 20 percent since the 1970s, yet vegetable imports are up about 180 percent. "U.S. agricultural imports in 2002 totaled $41 billion, up 5 percent from the previous year," reports USDA.

Farmers can capture more of the food dollar there simply by diversifying — growing more of what Americans eat today — extending our growing season with high tunnels and planting different varieties.

Pennsylvania leads the nation in preserving farmland. The next step, Wolff told the gathering in Wilmington, is figuring out how to preserve farmers by making farming more profitable.

Putting more of the food dollar in producers' pockets is a perfect place to start.

Editor's note: With his wife, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau member George DeVault raises certified organic vegetables near Emmaus. He is a Food and Society Policy Fellow with the Thomas Jefferson Agricultural Institute and Institute for Agriculture and Trade Policy in a program funded by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation (www.foodandsocietyfellows.org).

The DeVaults' articles on diversification, high-value crops, cut flowers and direct marketing are available on the Rodale Institute's Website, www.newfarm.org.

2004 Pa. Holstein Convention

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Holstein Association's annual convention is scheduled for Feb. 19-21 at the Four Points Sheraton, Greensburg. Holstein breeders from southwest Pennsylvania are planning this convention for the statewide membership of Pennsylvania Holstein breeders.

The convention's theme "We have what you are looking for in 2004" is to bring Holstein enthusiasts from across the state together to share their experiences and ideas, and to enjoy themselves.

In addition to the adult convention, the junior convention will take place at the Four Points Sheraton from Feb. 6-8. County Dairy Bowl teams will compete for the honor to represent Pennsylvania at the National Junior Holstein Dairy Bowl Contest. Distinguished Junior Member and Holstein Scholarship recipients will be named. The seventh public speaking contest will also be conducted. There will be workshops and activities for the approximately 400 youth that attend. This convention encourages and provides opportunity for our youth.

Convention sponsorship categories have been assigned as follows:

- Partner — more than $1,000
- Sponsor — $400-$999
- Contributor — $100-$399
- Friend — Up to $99

Commercial exhibitor space is available at the following rates:

- $225 — Adult and Junior Conventions
- $175 — Adult Convention ONLY
- $100 — Junior Convention ONLY

If you have a commercial exhibit and also make a monetary donation, the combined amount of money will be used to determine your sponsorship category.

Please make your checks payable to "2004 PA Holstein Convention" and mail before Jan. 20 to 2004 PA Holstein Convention, c/o Bailey Herring, 433 Gibbon Glade Road, Farmington, PA 15437.

Grape Genetics Research Center In Line For $2.7 Million

GENEVA, N.Y. — Rep. Sherwood Boehlert (R-New Hartford) announced $2.7 million in funding for the USDA-ARS Grape Genetics Research Center at a press conference at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station Wednesday.

The funding would be used to design and build a new federal research facility for USDA scientists to work with Cornell University researchers in establishing and coordinating a national, concentrated grape program that maximizes the impact of grape research.

"These funds will establish the USDA-ARS Grape Genetics Center as the anchor tenant in the Cornell Agriculture and Food Technology Park at Geneva," said James E. Hunter, director of the Experiment Station. "Having this facility located at the park will result in the construction of the park's second building and pave the way for further development."

Hunter praised Congressmen Sherwood Boehlert, James Walsh, Maurice Hinchey, and State Senator Mike Nozzolio as key members of the New York delegation who were instrumental in making this award possible. "I congratulate them for their vision that investments in science and technology are important drivers of the upstate New York economy," said Hunter.

"The tremendous opportunity I've been given to serve this district for the last 21 years also provides New York State the seniority in Washington needed to bring this funding home," Boehlert said. "I'm proud of the efforts Cornell has put forward to improve the agriculture industry. This funding will go a long way toward energizing the grape industry here in New York which will reap immeasurable benefits for our local grape growers."

The funding was part of Fiscal Year 2004 Omnibus Appropriations spending bill passed by the House of Representatives on Monday. In addition to the $2.7 million in funding for the Cornell Grape Genetics Research Center, the bill included $3.55 million in funding for other area projects. The Senate is expected to pass the bill early next year.

Setting The Pace

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Clifford Hawbaker, right, receives a Pacesetter Award from the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders at their annual conference Thursday, presented by David McCorkle, vice president. Hawbaker and his wife Maggie operate a progressive 410-cow dairy near Chambersburg. He is recognized as being the "creative engine" in the formation of the Professional Dairy Managers of Pennsylvania in 1994. More from the conference is scheduled in next week's issue. Photo by Dave Lefever

Stink Bug: A Dangerous Nuisance

Karen Bernhard
Penn State Cooperative Extension
Lehigh County

Oh, the joys of getting out the Christmas decorations once again! Happy memories of Christmases past and memories of times gone by. Glitter and color and ribbons and ornaments and way down there on the bottom of the box ... stink bugs?

The brown marmorated stink bug (Halyomorpha halys), has become established in parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Maryland. No one knows exactly how or when, but it probably came as a "hitchhiker" in packaging materials of some commodity imported from its home in Asia. It may have arrived first in the Allentown area a few years before 1996. It invades homes in the fall, buzzing around lights and windows and getting into storage areas and household furnishings. When injured or disturbed, it gives off an unpleasant odor. More importantly, it may prove to be a serious threat to fruits and vegetables.

Lehigh County Cooperative Extension is cooperating with the USDA in studying this insect. We know that it is spreading beyond the Lehigh Valley, and believe it may have reached the central Pennsylvania area.

We'd like to know if residents in the Lancaster area are seeing it. If you think you are getting these insects in your home, please save a few specimens to confirm the identification (drop them into a small jar of rubbing alcohol), and e-mail Karen Bernhard at kmb13@psu.edu. If you prefer, write to Lehigh County Cooperative Extension, Lehigh County Agricultural Center, 4184 Dorney Park Road, Allentown, PA 18104 or phone (610) 391-9840.

Several species of insects, including a few of our native stink bugs, may enter homes in the fall. Here's how to tell if you have the bug we are looking for:

- The overall shape is like a shield.
- It is ½ to ⅝ inches long, and almost that wide.
- It has a brown or grayish, mottled coloring.
- The antennae have lighter colored "bands" where the segments attach together.

Other species of insects are sometimes confused with this one. Boxelder bugs are black and red. Western conifer seed bugs are brown, but much longer than wide, and do not have the white-bands on their antennae.

Brown marmorated stink bugs cause both economic and nuisance problems. They cause damage as they suck plant juices during the summer. They attack peaches, apples, Asian pears, snap beans, and other cultivated fruits and vegetables. Among ornamental plants, they especially like paulownia (princess tree), catalpa, maples, butterfly bushes, and almost anything with fruit.

Nuisance problems arise when temperatures drop in the fall and the bugs start seeking protected places to overwinter. The adults fly to nearby homes and buildings, congregate on the outside, and attempt to squeeze into crevices, window frames, air conditioners, etc. Most remain hidden until spring, when they go outdoors to mate and lay eggs. This overwintering behavior contributes to them being easily spread because some of the bugs seek shelter in vehicles and are carried to other locations.

Unfortunately, some make their way inside the home. The best way to keep stink bugs out of structures is to tighten up the building so they can't enter. Repair cracks and crevices and make sure window air conditioners are tight. Repair all exterior cracks and openings with caulking or some other suitable material.

Lancaster County Weekly Cattle

New Holland, Pa.

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2471	1722
LAST WEEK	2677	1977
LAST YEAR	3227	1998

This week in Lancaster County slaughter steers sold steady to 1 00 lower early in the week, with late week sales a full 2 00-3 50 lower The qualities of the steer runs in the county have been lower over the past couple of weeks A lot of the cattle are carrying some fill as well, which has them trading for around 5 00 lower than the bulk of the cattle Supplies are tight, as the excellent finished market over the past several months has pretty much brought anything close to being finished away from the bunk and through the sale ring The western direct feedyards moved their live cattle from 3 00-5 00 lower from 96 00-98 00 Dressed sales in Nebraska were from 5 00-7 00 lower at 155 00 The Merc responded to the lower finished trade with near limit-down losses for a few days this week which left the current spot December live cattle contract at 93.57 at Thursday's close. However, what has caught most analysts and feeders eyes is the August contract, which is currently at 73 75 Its hard to tell where the current market is heading, the only factor that is certain right now is that prices remain very good, even though most people have become accustomed to the auctioneer using that magic 100 00 number to sell their cattle, that same auctioneer was selling Choice cattle in the 71 00-75 00 range this time last year Slaughter Holstein steers sold steady early in the week, with Thursday sales 1 00-2 50 lower Slaughter heifers sold steady to weak early, with end of the week prices 2 00-2 50 lower Slaughter cows sold weak to 3 00 lower for the week, with slaughter bulls trending mostly steady The cattle supply this week in Lancaster County included 610 slaughter steers, 107 slaughter heifers, 1186 slaughter cows, 185 slaughter bulls, and 383 head of feeder cattle

Note The Vintage Sales Stables will be holding a special feeder cattle sale on Monday December the 15th set to begin right after the fat cattle sale

Calf Summary This Week in Lancaster County, slaughter calves sold steady to weak There is some noticeable resistance from slaughter buyers, as only a short time ago they were willing to give up to 85 00 or 90 00 for slaughter calves Now, many of the kill calves are at the 60 00 level or lower Holstein bull calves sold 10 00-15 00 higher on Monday However, prices in the Tuesday and Thursday graded runs were sharply lower for the most part Northeast special-fed hide off veal carcasses were reported from 165 00-205 00 by the USDA on Thursday The weighted average is at 193 98, which continues to trend lower Most local producers are receiving below 200 00 dressed calves for the first time in several months Holstein heifer calves sold with a steady to firmer undertone throughout the week The PA Department of Agriculture graded 1313 head of bulls and heifers at the two graded sales this week, with around 1115 head going through the graded sales this time last year

Proven varieties at a GREAT price!

BARALFA 321Q- Increased Quality
One of the highest forage quality varieties anywhere. Fine stems, large leaves - well proven, widely adapted.
29/30 Disease Resistance

BARALFA 54
A high yielder for southern Pennsylvania and Maryland Many customers still prefer 54. It yields very well and is priced right.

We've sold thousands of bags of Baralfa seed to hundreds of happy farmers here in the Mid Atlantic.

Super Disease Resistant Varieties

BARALFA 421Q- Increased Quality
In the last 2 yrs. we have had more good comments on its performance than any other variety Very strong dense crown and great root system. Tolerates earlier cuts, moist soils, and traffic better than most varieties
30/30 Disease Resistance

BARALFA 53HR
Very impressive yielder with great disease resistance and fast regrowth 109% of mean at 1998 Rock Springs trial (average of 3 years' data and still looking strong)!
30/30 Disease Resistance
4.8 Fall Dormancy
2.5 Winter Hardiness

A Month of Bread

Cookie baking is the perfect time to spend time in the kitchen with family and friends. Today's collection of recipes includes traditional and recently-developed cookie recipes to help make your holiday celebrations merry and bright.

BEST EVER SUGAR COOKIES

1 cup butter, softened
1½ cup confectioners' sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
Granulated sugar
½ teaspoon almond extract
2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cream of tartar

Mix thoroughly butter, confectioners' sugar, egg, vanilla, and almond extract. Blend in flour, soda, and cream of tartar. Cover; chill 2-3 hours.

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Divide dough in half. Roll each half 3/16-inch thick on lightly floured board. Cut into desired shapes using your favorite cookie cutters. Sprinkle with sugar. Place on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake 7-8 minutes or until lightly brown around the edge. If desired, omit sprinkling with sugar and frost instead after cookies have cooled.

LEMON CHEESE PRESS COOKIES

1 cup butter
3 ounces cream cheese, softened
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2½ cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder

Cream butter, cheese and sugar until fluffy. Blend in remaining ingredients. Cover; chill 1 hour.

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Fill cookie press with ¼ of dough at a time. Form desired shapes on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 8-10 minutes or until lightly brown around the edges.

CHOCOLATE NUT TOFFEE BARS

1 cup butter
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1¼ cup flour
⅓ cup cocoa
½ cup chopped nuts
1 can (14-ounce) sweetened condensed milk
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Reserve 2 tablespoons butter. In large mixing bowl, beat remaining butter and sugar until fluffy. Add flour and cocoa; mix well. With floured hands, press into greased 13×9-inch baking pan. Bake 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, in medium saucepan, combine reserved butter and sweetened condensed milk, cook and stir until mixture thickens slightly, about 15 mintues. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Pour over crust. Bake 10 to 15 minutes longer or until golden brown. Remove from oven; immediately top with chips. Let stand 1 minute, spread while warm. Top with nuts. Cool. Cut into bars. Store covered at room temperature.

MAE'S COOKIES

3 cups brown sugar
1 cup butter
2 eggs
4 cups flour
1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon cream of tartar

Cream sugar and butter; add eggs; beat. Alternate dry ingredients and sour cream. Roll and cut, sprinkle sugar on top. Bake at 350 degrees.

ORANGE COOKIES

2 cups sugar
1 cup butter
1 cup buttermilk
2 eggs
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
4 cups flour
Juice of 1 orange

Mix all together. Drop and bake at 350 degrees. Frost.

Icing:
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons fresh orange juice

Lebanon County Dairy Miss

LEMON SNOWDROPS

1 cup butter
½ cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon lemon extract
2 cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix butter, sugar, and extract. Blend in flour and salt. Chill.

Shape dough into small (level teaspoon) balls. Place on ungreased baking sheets, flatten slightly. Bake 8 minutes at 400 degrees. Remove from sheets to cool. Fill with filling placing two cookies together. Roll in powdered sugar.

Lemon Butter Filling:
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
½ cup water
2 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
3 tablespoons lemon juice

Mix sugar and cornstarch; stir water in gradually. Cook stirring constantly until mixture thickens and boils. Boil and stir 1 minute. Remove from heat; stir in butter, lemon peel, and juice. Cool completely.

I worked in a bakery nearly 10 years and found parchment paper is something that should be used when baking cookies. If you bake alot at Christmas you need not change the paper between each variety unless using decorating sugar that sticks. You never need to grease pans either.

CHOCOLATE PEANUT BUTTER CUP COOKIES

1 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
2 squares (1 ounce each) unsweetened baking chocolate
1 cup sugar
½ cup shortening
2 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups plus 2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup finely chopped peanuts
36 peanut butter cup miniatures (unwrapped)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Melt chocolate chips and chocolate squares in microwave just until smooth, stirring often. Cool slightly.

Combine sugar and shortening; beat in eggs one at a time; add salt and vanilla. Add chocolate mixture slowly mixing well. Stir in baking soda and flour; mixing well.

Shape dough into 1¼-inch balls. Roll in peanuts. Bake on ungreased baking sheets 8 minutes or until edges are set. Press peanut butter cup in center immediately. Remove from cookie sheet to cool completely.

Drizzle:
1 cup peanut butter chips

Place chips in heavy sandwich bag or plastic throw away decorating bag. Microwave on 50 percent power; kneading bag often until melted. Cut off tiny corner of bag and drizzle over cookies. Makes 3 dozen.

1 tablespoon lemon juice

Mix all ingredients together until blended and smooth.

For cookies, combine butter, sugar, cream cheese, egg yolk, lemon juice, and vanilla with mixer. Beat until well blended. Beat in flour and salt. Wrap dough in plastic wrap. Chill at least 1 hour. Shape into 1-inch balls.

With mixer, beat reserved egg white lightly. Dip balls in egg white; roll in nuts. Place 2 inches apart on ungreased baking sheet. Press thumb deep into center of each cookie. Fill with lemon cheese filling.

Bake in preheated 375 degrees oven for 10 minutes or until filling is set. Cool slightly; remove from baking sheets. Store tightly covered in refrigerator. Makes about 6 dozen.

CHOCOLATE DIPPED CRANBERRY COOKIES

1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cups fresh or frozen cranberries
1⅓ cups semi-sweet chocolate chips, melted
1¼ cups chopped nuts

In a medium mixing bowl, beat shortening and sugar together until light and fluffy. Add vanilla and egg; mix well. Combine flour, baking power, and salt. Add to shortening mixture, mixing until soft dough forms. Stir in cranberries.

Immediately drop by rounded teaspoonfulls onto greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes or until golden brown. Transfer cookies to a wire rack; cool completely.

Dip half of each cookie into melted chocolate and then in nuts. Allow chocolate to dry completely. Makes 3 dozen.

BLUEBERRY FILLED COOKIES

1 cup shortening
1½ cup brown sugar
2 eggs
4 cups flour
1 cup rolled oats
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
¼ cup milk
2 teaspoons vanilla
Blueberry pie filling

Mix ingredients in order given. Roll out and cut with round cutter. Put 1 teaspoon blueberry pie filling on a cookie, top with another cookie. Press edges together. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Ice with your favorite frosting and decorate with colored sugar. Very good and soft.

COCONUT COOKIES

Bottom Part:
1½ cups all purpose flour
2 tablespoons brown sugar
½ cup butter

Mix until crumbly then pat on a 9x13-inch baking pan.

Sprinkle over the top:
½ cup flaked coconut
1 cup chopped walnuts

Mix together and drizzle over top:
2 eggs
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups brown sugar

Bake 20-25 minutes at 350 degrees.

CREAM CHEESE COOKIES

1 cup packed light brown sugar
1 cup white sugar
1 cup butter
2 eggs
3½ cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
8-ounce package cream cheese
4 cups confectioners' sugar
Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

Cream together white and brown sugars, butter, eggs, baking soda, salt, and vanilla. Spoon in flour and mix well.

Drop by teaspoon onto cookie sheet. Bake 8 to 10 minutes. Let cookies cool, then place filling on one cookie and put together like a sandwich.

To make filling: Mix together cream cheese, confectioners' sugar. Spread on cooled cookies. Makes 4 dozen.

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

What we need is a good, long, snowy winter.

No, wait. Before you start calling me nasty names, please read on.

Consider the economic kick-in-the-pants lent by a good, old-fashioned snowfall. Snow gives a dynamite boost to our national spending. With a foot plus of the white stuff already under our belts for the season, combined with the shopping frenzy season, the resulting generation of dollars spent should send the financial markets skyrocketing.

Signs of recovery from our stagnant economy have been stirring around for awhile. A long, snowy winter would stoke up the fuels of spending fire to build a head of steam under the creeping economy and send it down the track a'smokin'.

If you doubt for a minute the economic effectiveness of snow, consider this single commodity. Salt. The Farmer was in a hardware/building supplies store a day prior to last week's dumping of white stuff. He came home commenting on how the shelves were totally barren of that simple basic material.

Gone were the bags of sidewalk melting salt. Gone were the bags of anything faintly related to a salt product. Check out your local supermarket during a stretch of winter weather stuff, and the pickling salt, the kosher salt, the ice-cream making salt will all be gone. We assume that gritty cat litter probably also saw a sales spike.

Remember the salt shortage that struck the East Coast during a particularly intense stretch of weeks of cold, ice, and snow a couple of years ago? Even the shelf spots that are always stocked full of those standard one-pound cylinders of table salt we buy at the supermarket held nothing but empty space.

The Farmer notes that a skid of feed-ingredient salt was ordered shortly before the onset of Arctic-imitation weather, more as it turns out than we will likely need for some time. I can smell a marketing opportunity here.

Consider other spending spikes spurred by impending snowstorms. There's the inevitable rush for milk (buy extra gallons!), bread, potato chips, and toilet paper (we don't want to run out of that, do we?), and rentals of videos.

Even ice cream sales zip up when snow is imminent. That was always a puzzle to me. But, hey it's dairy, so treat yourself to an extra big dishful when you come in from shoveling and sledding.

Snow tire sales get a major boost when the first flakes start to float. So do ice scrapers, shovels, snow blowers, and no doubt, snow-moving equipment for use with lawn/garden machines. And cabs to put over them, so the operator can stay dry and snug.

My dad spent most of his working career in the shipping department of a local chain manufacturer. Blizzards, both local and distant, generated lots of overtime for him as the firm packaged and shipped tire chains 24/7. Tire chains have faltered seriuosly as a snow economy boost in this era of front-wheel drives and SUVs, at least in part of the country

An entire tourist industry would fall apart — we're talking billions of bucks — without snow, natural and manmade. To say nothing of ski and snowboard gear, lift-equipment maintenance, slope grooming, hotels and lodges, food establishments, medical centers, ambulance services, crutch rentals ... well, enough of that one.

What about the body-shop industry, which sees backups of weeks for repair work after major, lengthy, white-weather "events"? Windshield repair folks also get a boost from cracked glass resulting from connecting with ice flying off vehicles on the highway and gravel tossed up from icy-road applications.

While not measurable on a financial chart, snow has always been viewed as a beneficial boost to farmland. It blankets and shelters the soil, mulches vauable plantings like alfalfa and fall-seeded grain crops, and carries moisture into the subsoil. And that benefits everyone who uses water and like to eat regularly.

Goodness gracious, with all these positive benefits of snow, shouldn't we all have "blizzard" at the top of our Christmas lists? Santa would be especially appreciative.

And, look what he does for the economy.

Extension Offers Courses

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in Bedford, Fulton, and York counties will be offering three Extension Home Study Courses this winter, beginning Feb. 4. The purpose of the courses is to teach producers about production principles for beef, sheep, or meat goats.

All three courses are available through the postal service and the sheep and meat goat courses are available through e-mail/internet. Each course has six lessons that are to be completed weekly. The lesson topics include basic production information, nutrition, health, reproduction, marketing, and financial issues.

Each lesson has information about the topic and a worksheet for producers to complete and mail or e-mail back to the extension office for comments. Producers can also submit any questions that they would like answered.

Melanie Barkley, Bedford County extension agent, said "Each course is a great way for producers to learn new information without having to rearrange their schedule to accommodate a meeting. Producers can study the lessons at their leisure in their own home." The worksheet questions are designed to ask producers about their current operation so that they can have comments from the instructor to help them improve their management skills.

For more information you can contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office in Bedford County at (814) 623-4800 or in Fulton County at (717) 485-4111. Cost for the course is $15 if taking over e-mail/internet (sheep ad meat goat courses only) and $25 if taking through the postal service. Deadline for registration is Jan. 29.

Celebrating Holidays With A Blended Family

Holidays can be challenging times for blended families. Unresolved feelings, bitterness, and mixed loyalties can sidetrack what should be a happy time. However, with some advance planning, flexibility, and creativity, your blended family can enjoy pleasant and enriching holiday celebrations.

In a blended family, at least one adult has a child or children from a former relationship. These children regularly visit or live with the couple. A blended family may be small, consisting of an adult couple and one child, or larger, perhaps consisting of her, his, and their children. Custody arrangements may result in the parent's building a family around full-time, shared, or weekend step-parenting. If your family is a blended family, consider the following suggestions that may help you manage the challenges of the holiday season.

Be Flexible. Who says your family has to celebrate a given holiday on its official date? Who says all members of your blended family need to be together on a particular holiday? Do your best to stay out of power struggles with former spouses and other family members about where the children will spend the holiday. If you adopt a flexible attitude, you'll discover many satisfactory ways to celebrate holidays.

For example, in your family you may decide to celebrate Thanksgiving on the following Sunday. In the short run, this may ease the stress on everyone.

You may start a new tradition in your family. Creating new ways of celebrating encourages the growth of bonds between family members and creates pleasant memories that are not rooted in the more distant past.

Encourage sharing of feelings. Let youngsters, grandparents, and others share their feelings. Listen sensitively without interrupting or trying to fix problems they share with you. You may not agree with everything a person says (and you certainly will not be able to accommodate everyone's preferences), but family members will appreciate your listening to them and taking their needs into account.

Allow time and space for the child whose biological parent is not present to express sadness, regret, or guilt. Sometimes a child will feel disloyal to the absent parent. Acknowledging such emotions helps the child move through these feelings rather than getting stuck in them. Reassure the child who will not be with you that he will be missed, but that you will be all right. Give him permission to enjoy himself with the parent he visits. If you have conflicting emotions, confide in a caring adult rather than your child.

Plan Ahead. Discuss options and plan in advance of a given holiday. Encourage family members to share their ideas, as it helps everyone voice their opinions and avoid unrealistic expectations.

Deciding how to celebrate the holidays may not be easy, but planning in advance can help you bypass problems. Particularly when young children are involved, it is nice to anticipate the holidays without the stress of last-minute planning. Remember, keep the plans simple.

Avoid Competition. In blended families, stepparents, former spouses, grandparents, and other adults may compete for the time, favor, and attention of children in the family. Sometimes children, taking their cues from adults, compete for the favor of others, too. This competitiveness, while subtle, damages family well-being and promotes an unhealthy air of tension. Realize that the competitiveness is usually rooted in jealousy and feelings of personal inadequacy.

Focus on being the best person you can be. Appreciate your positive qualities and those of your family. Enjoy yourselves. Avoid feelings of jealousy and unhealthy competition.

Avoid over-commitment. Three complete holiday meals in one day are too much for anyone's stomach! This example is just one way blended families may over-commit during a holiday. Do less, better. Keep your celebrations manageable and enjoyable. End family get-togethers before fatigue sets in, and plan activities that leave everyone relaxed when they're over.

If you share gifts, be thoughtful, fair, and creative, making sure you don't spend more than you can afford.

Rise above bitterness. Make it a game to see if you can be calm and even-minded in challenging circumstances. Children in blended families are relieved and adjust best when the adults are at least pleasant to one another. Children may not care all that much when, where, or how they celebrate a holiday. However, it is very important to them that the adults they love get along with each other. Look upon challenging relationships as a test of your creative ability, kindness and inner strength. When you focus on changing yourself rather than trying to change others, you set a valuable example for children.

Enjoy your family's uniqueness. Expect your stepfamily to be very different from a first-marriage family. A blended family is no better or worse than any other family, but it is unique. Learn to appreciate the advantages of your family and the strengths of each person in it.

Avoid blaming problems on the blended family. Kids will be kids and adults will occasionally be immature whether in a first-marriage family or a stepfamily.

The idea of perfect families who celebrate perfect holidays is a myth. All families struggle, and it's through these difficulties that we grow in understanding. Appreciate your family as a training ground for love. Discuss what is right in your family, and express appreciation for one another. Do it until it becomes a habit.

Maintain a sense of humor. All step-families go through hard times. It is tempting to bring the heaviness of the past into the present. Avoid this tendency. Focus on having fun, even if you must be a little outrageous. For youngsters and older folks, gloom disperses quickly when someone gets silly, breaks into a grin, or makes a funny comment.

Especially during the holiday season, blended family members need permission to let the past stay in the past and enjoy the present.

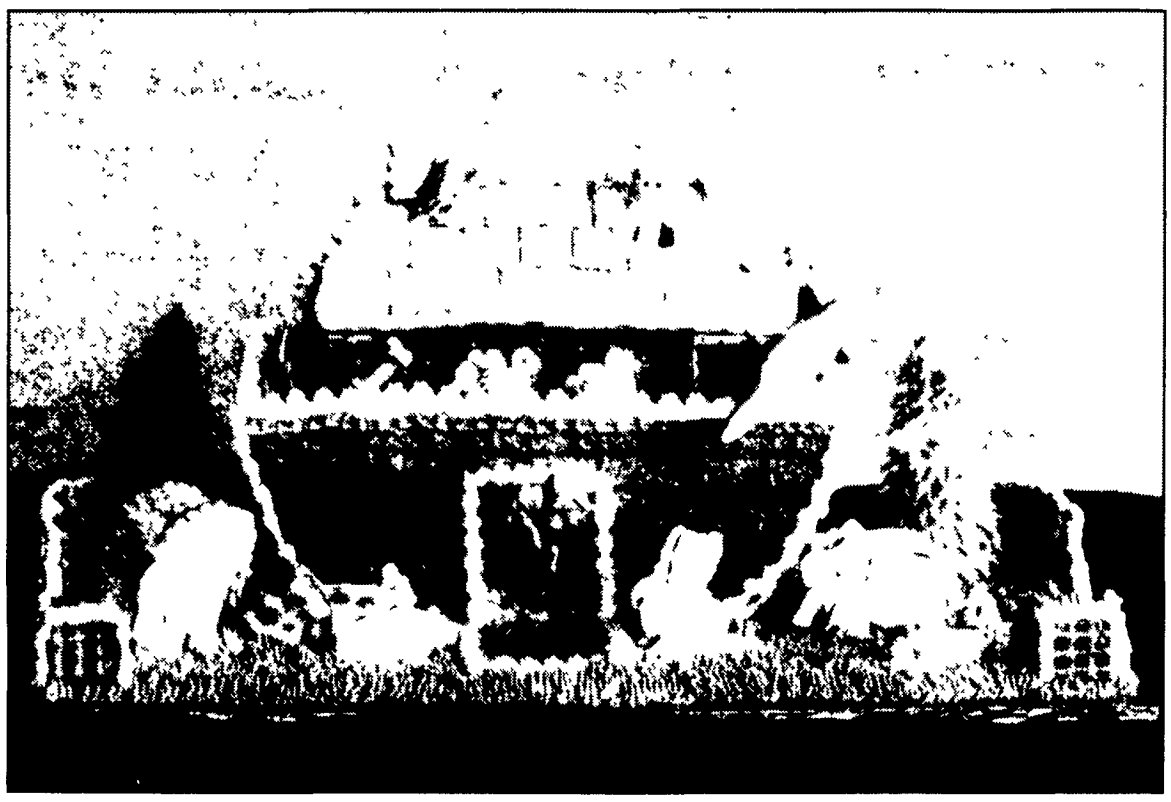
Katie and Belinda team together to add icing artistic touches to the gingerbread animals. The royal icing they use for holding together and decorating the components works like a culinary cement.



Finding animal cookie cutters of the appropriate size and type to complement the ark's dimensions was a challenge, but worth it. This ark took first prized at the York Fair in September and placed third nationally in "Good Housekeeping" magazine's annual gingerbread contest.

Gingerbread Ark Floats To New Heights

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

DALLASTOWN (York Co.) — A winning York Fair gingerbread creation has made it to the big time.

Katie Myers' gingerbread ark, complete with its parade of two-by-two animals, took first place in its category at the York Fair in September. Her mother, perennial regional baking contest winner Belinda Myers, arranged to have a professional photograph taken of the culinary creation. Belinda submitted the photograph with an entry form to the "Good Housekeeping" magazine's annual gingerbread contest.

The gingerbread ark snagged third place in the national contest and a $500 prize.

Belinda and Katie split the prize money, then put their heads together in the family's Springfield Township farm kitchen to remember the details of how the creation had been fashioned from original patterns they designed. The magazine needed step-by-step directions since it planned to have the gingerbread ark recreated by a professional chef and displayed this holiday season, along with other top contest winners, at New York City's Rockefeller Square.

This mother-daughter culinary duo has had its ups and downs along the gingerbread contest path. In 2002, the first year that the York Fair held the Brer Rabbit molasses-sponsored gingerbread competition, Belinda and Katie built a barn. The barn was fashioned, of course, out of their Grandma's Gingerbread recipe, complete with appropriate animals and accessories, including a silo.

On their arrival at the fair with the intricately-decorated barn, they learned that the category had the unusual requirement of a dozen cookies to be submitted for the judges' taste-testing. Most contests call for a half-dozen cookies. They tried, unsuccessfully, to halve each of their six cookies to meet the requisite dozen.

"I told Katie at the time that I felt there was some special thing the gingerbread barn was supposed to be meant for," Belinda says, relating how they swallowed their disappointment at the submission error and hauled it back home.

In a classic lemons-to-lemonade move, the gingerbread barn was donated for fundraising during the junior livestock sale. The sale generated proceeds of $7,000, which the juniors had voted earlier to donate to the Red Cross' post-Sept. 11 disaster effort.

This year's gingerbread construction was a unique challenge, due to the ark's curved shape. Incorporating a giraffe, with its head poked out through the roof, required an extra measure of deftness as well, so as not to break either the roof or the giraffe's long, delicate gingerbread neck in the process.

Cereal squares provided appropriate shingles for the roof, as well as shredding handily for interior animal "bedding." The ark's two-by-two animal parade included chickens and cows, pigs, rabbits, elephants, lions, butterflies, all air-brushed with food-color painted touches. A pair of sugar bees alighted on a green-icing-covered, ice-cream-cone pine tree. Perched on the top of the ark, which appeared to have come to rest in a pretzel-fenced setting of royal icing grass, was a sugar dove.

And, all that had to fit into the required 12×12-inch display area.

"Getting it there was fun, too, with all the holes and bumps in the roads," said Katie of the trip to transport the fragile, finished creation.

Katie opted not to leave her winning ark at the display area once the judging was complete and the ark bore a blue ribbon. Instead, she and Belinda carefully moved it back to their kitchen, where it sat for a few weeks in the oven, with a candle burning to keep the gingerbread from getting damp. Meanwhile, Belinda contacted several professional photographers before finally finding one who would agree to picture their gingerbread structure.

"Every time we needed to use the oven, we would carefully take it out, change the racks, set it aside, then put it back in when we were finished," said Belinda.

By the time the ark had been photographed against a blue background suggestive of dimishing waters, hurricane Isabel had dumped her own moisture across the region, wreaking mold and mildew havoc. Dampness is a death blow to crisp, sturdy gingerbread, causing it to soften and sag. Mold was spreading across the ark when Belinda and Katie took one long, last look at their hours of work, then dumped it over the fence to their beef herd.

"The cows loved it," Katie said, chuckling about how quickly the cows devoured the gingerbread treat.

Meanwhile, Belinda was literally scouring the countryside for the December 2002 magazine edition that included the entry form for the gingerbread contest. After checking several medical and dental office magazine stacks, she finally tracked a copy down at the local library.

Then, she hit another snag. Her original entry paperwork was returned in the mail. The post office box listed in the contest's published address had been accidentally closed. Notification of the win, and receipt of the prize check, made all the entry frustrations just part of the memory.

The Myers' began entering local food contests many years ago, and Katie has ribbons for winning cookies baked when she was barely tall enough to roll dough at the table. Enrolling as a student at York County School of Technology, Katie initially considered studying in diesel mechanics, but ultimately settled on the school's culinary program.

A regular assistant to her father, Andy, with the farm's beef and crops chores, Katie returned to Vo-Tech for night courses in the diesel mechanics program. She works part-time at a neighbor's dairy farm and is considering returning to school for animal-related studies.

Along with the usual crush of baking specialities for the Christmas holidays, the mother-daughter duo is focusing on the upcoming Pennsylvania Farm Show culinary contests. Both have qualified in the Hershey cocoa competition, Katie with one of her favorite flavor combinations, chocolate and mint. She whipped another pair of flavor favorites into a quickbread, qualifying in that category with an innovative cheese and spinach creation.

Belinda is also eligible for the quickbreads category, along with qualifying with apple and shoofly pies and pineapple upside-down cake.

In addition to helping with the family's beef and crops operation, Katie is employed part-time on a neighboring dairy farm.

The Farm Show competition wraps up the culinary contest season across the region for several months.

One thing is certain though, Katie and Belinda will be busy in the kitchen whipping up trial runs for the next new culinary challenge.

TWO-BY-TWO GRANDMA'S GINGERBREAD

1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1½ cup Brer Rabbit dark molasses
2 eggs, beaten
5 to 5½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons ginger
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cloves

Melt shortening in a small sauce pan over low heat just until melted. Add in order, sugar, molasses, and eggs. Mix well. Cool slightly. Add flour 1 cup at a time plus baking soda, salt, ginger, cinnamon, nutmeg, and cloves. Mix well. Turn onto a well floured surface and knead to make a firm stiff dough by hand (you may need a little flour).

Chill for at least three hours or overnight. When ready to roll, set out for at least 1½ hours for easier rolling. Roll out on a lightly floured surface ¼-inch thick. Using various pattern ark shaped pieces, and animal-shaped cookie cutters. Lay pieces on parchment-covered cookie sheets placing 1 inch apart. Bake in a 375 degree oven for 9 to 12 minutes (smaller pieces may not take as long).

To build the ark, glue pieces together with royal icing.

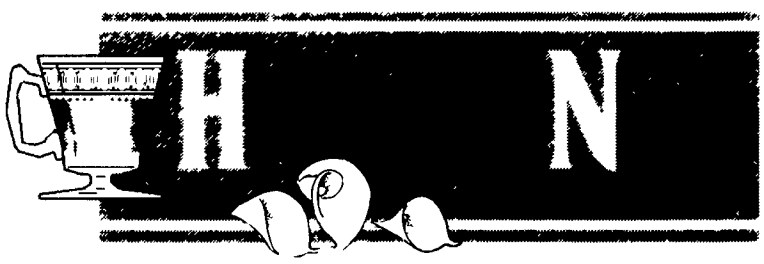
Royal Icing:
3 tablespoons meringue powder
4 cups confectioners' sugar
6 tablespoons water

Beat all ingredients for royal in a large mixer bowl. Whip with wire whip until icing makes stiff peaks.

Keep covered with damp towel while working.

Color-flow (using a small amount of royal icing, add a few drops of water to make a thick liquid consistency. Icing is ready when stirred, the mix will smooth out at a count of 10). The animal shapes are colored flowed on one side. Let dry until hard. Color with various shades.

Place on foil-covered cardboard. Use grass decorating tube covered base to hold animal shapes in place.



Dairy Industry Launches 'Healthy Weight With Dairy' Campaign

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The "Healthy Weight with Dairy" campaign, launched nationally Oct. 21 by dairy checkoff organizations and industry partners, touts scientific research that suggests a link between dairy consumption and reduced body weight. The research was initially funded by the dairy checkoff's National Dairy Council (NDC). NDC is the science and education arm of Dairy Management Inc.™ (DMI), which manages the national dairy checkoff program.

"This research provides science-based support for the positive role dairy can play in weight management," said Scott Higgins, president and CEO of American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East. "Additional research by independent sources has also suggested a positive relationship between dairy and reduced body weight that the NDC-funded research identified," added Patricia Purcell, CEO of Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association.

The campaign is based on recent articles in leading medical journals that suggest a link between dairy food consumption and weight management. The campaign will remind consumers that milk, cheese, and yogurt may help in weight-loss efforts when paired with a reduced-calorie, low fat diet. The campaign also will remind consumers of the importance of getting enough exercise. Scientists still are studying why dairy is so important, but preliminary research suggests that calcium plays a role in regulating the body's natural system for storing calories as fat.

Industry partners National Milk Producers Federation (NMPF), the International Dairy Foods Association (IDFA) and the Milk Processor Education Program (MilkPEP) are working with DMI to build awareness of this growing body of research on dairy and weight management.

During the next six months, the Healthy Weight with Dairy campaign will communicate the research to consumers through a major print advertising initiative, national and regional public relations, and trade and health professional efforts. Additionally, a new consumer Website, www.healthyweightwithdairy.com, includes more information on the research, helpful weight-loss tips, recipes that include dairy and links to other wellness sites.

The dairy producer checkoff already has invested about $8 million in nutrition research on weight management over the past decade. In addition, National Dairy Council and local dairy councils will be contributing several million additional dollars and significant human resources in educating consumers, health professionals, and other audiences about dairy's role in weight management. Milk processors, through MilkPEP are reallocating more than $5 million this year to support the campaign.

"Calcium Weighs In"

A major public relations effort also launched on Oct. 21 to herald the program. This effort will tout results of "Calcium Weighs In," a project that put the ideas behind "Healthy Weight with Dairy" into action. The 16-week program, which was conducted in the town of Calcium in upstate New York, taught participants how to make better food and lifestyle choices overall, including eating at least three servings of milk, cheese, and yogurt each day, cutting excess calories, and increasing their daily physical activity. Program participants lost about a pound each week.

To celebrate the weight loss success of the residents of Calcium, DMI, IDFA, and MilkPEP conducted a national media launch Oct. 21. One of the 13 regional events across the country took place in Columbus, Ohio and provided more than 1,500 samples of low-fat and fat-free milk and cheese to commuters at busy morning rush hour and lunchtime locations. Commuters in Baltimore, Md., also sampled milk and cheese at a similar promotion conducted near the busy Inner Harbor.

The local events included prize giveaways, including a year's supply of milk, cheese, and yogurt, as well as morning radio and television interviews. Additionally, pedometers were given to the first 100 visitors to the lunchtime location and dairy council dietitians were on hand to answer questions.

WIN THE WEIGHT LOSS BATTLE

Tips on Managing a Healthy Weight

Research indicates a simple shift in eating habits may help lower your risk of developing certain chronic diseases including osteoporosis, heart disease, and obesity. While it can be tempting to cut corners when trying to lose weight, there are simple things that can be done to healthfully shed pounds.

- Food First — Nutrition experts recommend giving your body a nutrient boost by eating real foods instead of supplements. Calcium-rich foods such as lowfat milk, cheese, and yogurt are the preferred sources of calcium — and they taste better than a pill.
- Take It Slow — Studies show gradual weight loss increases success for keeping extra weight off permanently. Your goal should be to lose no more than 1 to 1½ pounds per week.
- Be A Calorie Burner — Simple activities such as walking or riding a bike are important to losing extra pounds and maintaining a healthy weight. An increase in any type of daily activity that fits your lifestyle will help you to burn more calories. At least thirty minutes a day is all it takes.
- Balance is the Key — Stick to a healthy, balanced diet that includes a variety of naturally nutrient-rich foods from every category in the Food Guide Pyramid. Organize your eating plan to include at least three servings of dairy foods such as milk, cheese, or yogurt, and 8 to 10 servings of fruits and vegetables.
- Portion Control — Try keeping a food diary. You may not know it, but you might be eating for two. Keeping a record of what you eat throughout the day may help you to control portion sizes and count calories, as well as plan more balanced and nutritious meals.
- Utilize Office Space — Coordinate "Get Fit" programs at work and suggest a group walk at lunch or suggest bringing a yoga instructor or personal trainer to the office. Exercise can be a lot easier when you have support, so team up with a coworker at the office.
- Cut Calories, Not Calcium — Calcium is often sacrificed when people are trying to lose weight because they mistakenly cut dairy foods from their diet for fear of fat. But, recent studies published in leading journals suggest a link between dairy consumption and reduced body weight.
- Doctor Before Diet — Always consult a physician or registered dietitian when modifying your eating plan. A qualified health professional can create a menu plan designed especially for you to help manage your weight and meet your nutrition needs.
- Ditch "Miracle" Products — Say no to diet products that promise fast results with minimal effort and no exercise. Leading an active lifestyle and eating the right foods is doctor recommended and the most effective way to build strong bones and help lower the risk of developing certain chronic diseases.
- Keep the Carbs — Some fad diets suggest cutting carbohydrates from the diet and supplementing excess amounts of protein, which may result in protein overload and will not result in healthy weight loss. Carbohydrates are your energy source and without them the body cannot effectively do its job to maintain your energy level.

LOST STREAM MAP

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible a map that shows every stream and lake He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true Computers made it possible to reprint the map Howard said, 'I never thought I'd live to see this day'

Professor Higbee's maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind.

ANSWER — Patricia Harden, Trappe, Md., wanted a recipe for chow chow that tastes like that served at Shady Grove Restaurant. Thelma Landis of Ephrata writes that she has never been to Shady Grove restaurant, but notes that if the following recipe she sent is not better than the restaurant's, write to her for more explanation.

Chow Chow

1 quart red kidney beans
1 quart sweet pickles
1 quart watermelon rind
1 quart celery
1 quart cauliflower
1 pint onion (or 2 tablespoons onion flakes)
1 quart yellow string beans
1 quart red sweet pepper
1 quart carrots
1 quart Jerusalem artichokes (not California-type artichokes)

As available, can each vegetable separately as follows: Cut into small pieces. Cook until almost soft and drain water. Cook in solution of one part vinegar and one part water.

When ready to make the chow chow: Add vegetables to large canner kettle. Add one spoon celery seed in spice bag, ½ teaspoon turmeric, 2 tablespoons of Mrs. Wages sweet pickle mix, and 1 teaspoon salt. Cook and mix for several minutes. Can and seal in hot jars with hot lids in boiling water bath. (Do not cold pack.) Let stand for one week before using.

Thelma uses white vinegar for white vegetables.

ANSWER — Charles Dodson wanted a recipe for parched or toasted corn. Frances Homa of Alpha, N.J. submitted this one:

Toasted Corn

Cut fresh corn from cob and spread ½ inch deep in pans lined with absorbent paper.

Dry in a 250-degree oven for two days, stirring several times. Put into a cloth sack, filling not more than half full. Keep in a warm place for three days, turning occasionally. Store in fruit jar in a dry place.

To serve: Soak overnight in water, salt to taste, and simmer for one hour. Add butter and cream.

One cup of dried corn makes six serving of cooked corn.

ANSWER — Lillian wanted a recipe for friendship cake starter and for the cake that is made with the starter. Thanks to Barbara Muir-Darby, for sending the following recipes.

Sourdough Starter

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar
2 cups warm water
1 envelope active dry yeast

In a large bowl, mix flour, sugar, yeast, and salt. Gradually stir in the water; beat or whisk until smooth. Cover with a towel; set in a warm draft-free place. Stir 2 or 3 times a day for about 3 days or until starter is bubbly and produces a yeasty aroma. Transfer to a large bowl, large jar, or plastic container. Cover partially (tilt lid or punchholes in plastic); refrigerate. Makes about 1 ½ to 2 cups starter.

Friendship Cake
(Makes 3 Bundt cakes)

Mix together:
1½ cups starter
2½ cups sugar
28-ounce can sliced peaches and juice

Stir together and cover. Stir every day. Do not refrigerate. On the 10th day add the following:
2 cups sugar
28-ounces chunky pineapple and juice

Stir every day. On the 20th day add the following:
2 cups sugar
28-ounces fruit cocktail and juice
1 small jar marachino cherries and juice

Stir every day. On the 30th day: Drain and save juice from fruit. Divide fruit into three equal parts. Divide juice into five (1½ cups each) portions, place into five containers and give to friends. Starter should be used within five days. None of this recipe should be refrigerated.

For each cake, combine:
1 yellow cake mix
⅔ cup oil
4 eggs
1 small box vanilla instant pudding
⅓ of the fruit mixture
½ cup nuts (optional)

Mix first four ingredients by hand. Add fruit and nuts. Bake in a greased and floured bundt pan at 350 degrees for 50-60 minutes. Cool 10 minutes before turning out of pan. Dust with confectioners' sugar.

Amish Cinnamon Bread

1⅔ cups starter dough
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup vegetable oil
4 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 box instant vanilla pudding
2 cups flour
1 cup raisins (optional)
2 tablespoons cinnamon
1 cup nuts (optional)
1 teaspoon baking soda

Blend above ingredients. Stir well. Pour into two greased and sugared pans or a Bundt pan. Bake at 350 for 1 hour.

Sourdough Pancakes

1 cup flour
1½ cups sourdough starter
3 tablespoons sugar
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg slightly beaten
½ teaspoon baking soda
3 tablespoons cooking oil

Preheat griddle to 375 or until water drops skitter on surface. Combine dry ingredients in large bowl. Stir well to blend. Add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Batter may be slightly lumpy. Grease hot griddle as needed. Pour about ¼ cup batter onto griddle. Cook until edges are dry, then turn and cook other side. Makes 12 large pancakes.

Frances Homa recommends the following honey starter recipe for people who exclude processed sugar from their diets. She also submitted the quick overnight starter and cake recipes that follow.

Friendship Honey Starter

1 package dry yeast
2½ cups warm water
2 tablespoons honey
2½ cups all-purpose flour

Combine the yeast, water, honey, and flour in a two-quart glass mixing bowl. Cover with cheese cloth and place in a warm place (about 85 degrees Fahrenheit) to ferment. In two or three days sourdough will be ready to use. Use, or store in a clean plastic container with a fitted cover in refrigerator until needed. Be sure a hole is punched in container lid to allow gases to escape. If a clear liquid forms on top of mixture, stir down when ready to use.

Replenish at least once a week with equal portions of warm water and all-purpose flour.

Quick Overnight Starter

1 package plus one tablespoon dry yeast
4 cups lukewarm water
4 cups all-purpose flour

Dissolve yeast in a small amount of lukewarm water. Stir flour in remaining water and add yeast mixture. Stir well and cover. Let mixture stand in a warm, draft-free place, about 85 degrees Fahrenheit for at least six hours. Starter is now ready to be mixed with other ingredients for your favorite sourdough recipe.

Sourdough Raisin-Carrot Cake

1 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
4 eggs, separated
½ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
½ cup cooking oil
½ cup sourdough starter
1 cup coarsely grated raw carrots
½ cup seedless raisins
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel

Combine flour, baking powder, salt, baking soda, and cinnamon. Set aside. Beat egg whites in small mixing bowl until soft peaks form. Set aside. in a large bowl combine sugar, oil, egg yolks, and sourdough starter. Mix in carrots, raisins, and lemon peel. Blend in dry ingredients. Fold in beaten egg whites. Turn batter into a well-greased and lightly floured two-quart ring mold or loaf pans. Bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for 30 minutes or until done. Cool in pan on wire rack for 10 minutes. Turn out onto rack to finish cooling. Makes one cake.

ANSWER — A Lititz reader was looking for cookie recipes and hors d'ourves to serve during the holidays. Vera Jane Newswanger offered the following recipe for chicken nut puffs, noting that they are not sweet, sticky, or drippy, and that her family loves them.

Chicken Nut Puffs

1½ cups finely chopped, cooked chicken
⅓ cup chopped almonds
1 cup chicken broth
½ cup vegetable oil
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
½ to 1 teaspoon celery seed
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 cup all-purpose flour
4 eggs

Combine the chicken and almonds and set aside. In a large saucepan, combine the next seven ingredients and bring to a boil. Add flour all at once and stir until a smooth ball forms. Remove from the heat and let stand for five minutes. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each, until smooth. Stir in the chicken and almonds. Drop by heaping teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheets. Bake at 450 degrees Fahrenheit for 12-14 minutes or until golden brown. Serve warm. Yields about six dozen.

'Healthy Weight With Dairy'

milk, salt, and ¼ cup water; heat over medium heat until steaming hot, but not boiling. Add oats and cook, stirring until creamy, 1 to 2 minutes. Remove the pan from the heat and stir in mashed banana and 1 tablespoon maple syrup. Divide between 2 bowls, garnish with walnuts and a little more maple syrup and serve. Makes 2 servings.

CREAMY POTATO SOUP

6 turkey bacon slices
1 cup onions, chopped
1 pound potato, thin-skinned, cut into ½-inch cubes
2½ cups chicken broth
3 tablespoons flour
2½ cups lowfat milk
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper, freshly ground
¼ cup parsley sprigs, chopped

In a large Dutch oven or soup pot, cook bacon until crisp. Remove bacon and drain on paper towels. When cool, chop bacon into small pieces and set aside.

Add onion to bacon drippings and cook until translucent. Add potatoes and broth to pot. Cover and bring to a boil. Simmer until potatoes are tender when pierced with a fork (about 10 minutes).

In a small bowl or jar, blend flour and milk until smooth. Add to broth and heat until boiling, stirring frequently. Boil one minute then turn off heat. Stir in salt, pepper, and parsley. Ladle soup into bowls and sprinkle with bacon pieces. Makes 5 servings.

WHITE CHILI

This dish traditionally is served on toast, but also try it over pasta or rice.

6 white corn tortillas
1 tablespoon olive or canola oil
¼ pound boneless, skinless chicken breast, trimmed and cut into ¼-inch chunks
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
2 small red bell peppers, seeded and diced
1 large onion, chopped
1 4-ounce can chopped green chilies, drained
3 cloves garlic, minced
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 teaspoon gried oregano
1 14-ounce can reduced-sodium chicken broth, defatted
2 cups fat free skin or 1% lowfat milk
2 15-ounce cans white hominy, drained and rinsed
Lime wedges for garnish

Season chicken with salt and pepper. In a deep saute pan or Dutch oven, heat ½ tablespoon oil over medium-high heat. Add chicken and cook, stirring often, until lightly browned, 2 to 3 minutes. Transfer to a plate and set aside. Add remaining ½ tablespoon oil to the pan. Add bell peppers and onion; season with salt and pepper and cook, stirring often, about 3 minutes. Add chopped green chilies, garlic, chili powder, cumin, and oregano; cook stirring, until fragrant, about 1 minute. Add broth and milk to the pan and bring to a simmer, stirring. Stir in hominy, toasted tortilla strips and browned chicken.

Reduce heat to low. Cover and simmer, stirring occasionally, until chicken is cooked through and sauce has thickened, about 20 minutes.

To serve, stir in ¼ cup of the cilantro into chili. Taste and adjust seasonings. Ladle the chili into bowls and garnish with remaining chopped cilantro, lime wedges if desired. Served immediately with baked tortilla chips if desired. Sprinkle on ¼ cup light shredded cheese for an extra dairy serving. Makes 8 servings.

TURKEY STROGANOFF

1 tablespoon butter
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced, 1 cup
1 large onion, sliced, 2 cups
2 tablespoons all purpose flour
4 cups (1 quart) fat free milk, at the boiling point
1 tablespoon powdered chicken stock seasoned base
2 tablespoons Hungarian sweet paprika
1 teaspoon dried basil, crushed
½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon red pepper flakes
2 tablespoons dry sherry (or 1 tablespoon sherry vinegar)
2 cups diced cooked lean turkey, all visible fat removed
1 cup light sour cream

Melt the butter in a large, nonstick skillet. Add the onions and sliced mushrooms and cook over medium heat, stirring frequently, until the onion is soft, translucent and lightly browned, about 12 minutes. Add the flour to the skillet and cook, stirring constantly for 3 minutes. Add the hot milk and chicken stock base and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Reduce the heat to low and simmer, stirring frequently, until slightly thickened, about 15 minutes.

Stir in the paprika, basil, black pepper, nutmeg, red pepper flakes, and sherry and simmer for 5 minutes. Add the turkey and heat through. Stir in the sour cream and serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Here's The Buzz About Starting A Fascinating Hobby

Clinton County beekeeper, Don Woodring, gets ready to place "wild" colony and honeycomb into a hive body. This hive had swarmed earlier in the year and never located a more permanent home.

THOMAS M. BUTZLER
Clinton Co. Extension

MILL HALL (Clinton Co.) My interest in honeybees was stimulated many years ago. I was trying to learn some ball-playing skills from my dad one spring day when we heard a large "buzzing" sound in the distance. It became louder as a large, black cloud spilled over the treetops and moved into our backyard. Running for cover, we noticed a little man dressed in a white suit following the black cloud. I later found out that the "white-suited man" was chasing honeybees that had swarmed from one of his hives.

This became my second experience with honeybees and aroused my curiosity. My first experience with honey-bees occurred after I stepped on a bee while romping through our dandelion-covered lawn. My feelings for honeybees were not positive as my toe was smarting and swollen.

Don Woodring, a Clinton County resident and experienced beekeeper, first found his interest when he lived in Harrisburg and wished of an agricultural experience.

"I wanted to get into the country and start an agricultural enterprise but I had no property at the time. Beekeeping was the entrance into the agricultural world for me" he said.

Both Don and I wanted to explore the world of beekeeping as many others do. Many want to know what the best course of action is for this endeavor.

Before rushing out and spending money, you may want to begin by exploring books and magazines on the subject. This will give you an idea of what is involved in terms of time, money and commitment.

Interacting with other beekeepers by attending meetings and schools is also a great introduction to this fascinating hobby. A beekeeping school will be held in January and February at the Penn State Cooperative Extension-Clinton County for new and experienced beekeepers.

"I always get something out of these educational events and at least I know some of the potential problems" states Craig Cella, Loganton beekeeper. Often it is not easy to begin an activity such as beekeeping, and this schooling will give participants both technical and practical information. Years ago, beekeeping, was pretty simple with very little management, but with the onset of honeybee diseases and mites, there is much more management. One can no longer muddle through beekeeping but must keep up-to-date with the latest findings."

Two honeybee mites have placed a damper on this hobby in recent years, and unless steps are taken to prevent or reduce the amount of mites in a colony, entire bee yards can be wiped out.

The Varroa mite, first found in the United States in the 1980's, will feed on the exterior of the bee body and feed on the bee's blood. When a larvae is infested by two or three Varroa mites, it will usually die. The tracheal mite, also a recent pest, completes its life cycle and feeding activities in the trachea (breathing tubes). It is believed that this mite interferes with flying.

Because of the high reproductive nature of both of these mites, infested colonies will usually die if left untreated, and colony loss may occur within a few months. In addition to the economic losses incurred by beekeepers, fruit and vegetable growers who depend upon bees to pollinate their crops could suffer shortages.

Some gung-ho people like to jump into beekeeping full force; starting off with 10 to 15 colonies. This is a sure recipe for disaster. Most beekeepers suggest one should start small.

Beginning beekeepers can purchase a hive that is already established from a local beekeeper or purchase beehive equipment from a beekeeping supply catalog, then import packages of bees from the South. For a beginner it is suggested that buying all new equipment with package bees is the best way to start. An established hive can create problems for the beginner in areas such as swarm control and requeening.

Keeping bees will provide endless hours of amazement and gratification for you and/or your kids. The beginning may be made in a small way at a minimum of expense and a little curiosity.

The 2003 Beekeeping Short Course will be held for five consecutive Mondays in January and February at the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office-Clinton County in Mill Hall. Monday classes, which begin Jan. 12, will meet from 7 to 9 p.m.

Kelly Butzler, professor at Pennsylvania College of Technology, explains the science of beekeeping to an attentive audience during a session at Four Mile Elementary School in Lycoming County by using an observation hive.

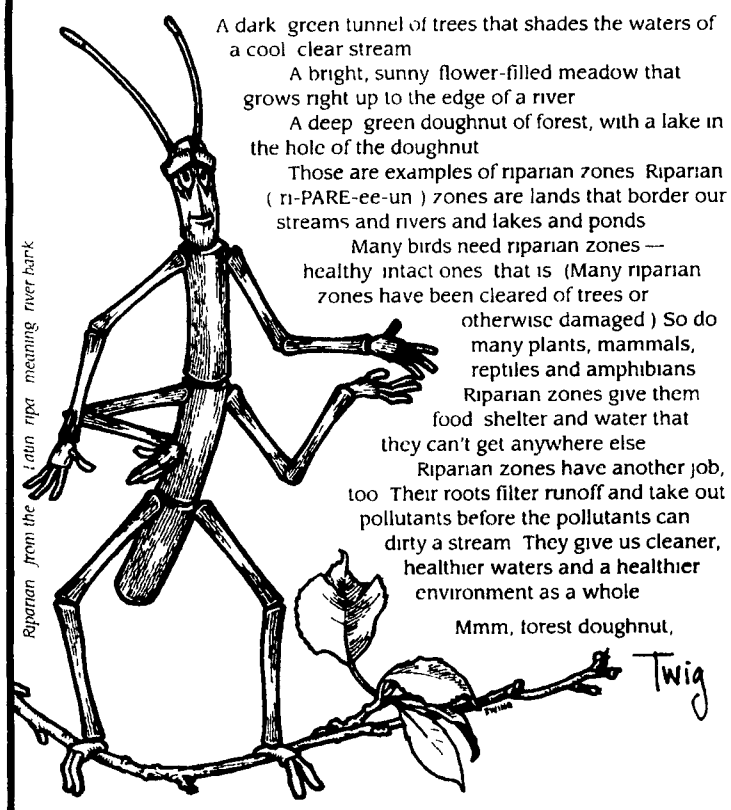
A typical hive set-up for beekeepers in Pennsylvania.

The following topics will be covered: Jan. 12: Parts of the hive; equipment needed Jan. 19: Installing package bees; how to feed Jan. 26: How honey bees produce honey; extracting honey Feb. 2: Spring and summer management; pollination Feb. 9: Fall and winter management; disease of bees Feb 23: Snow Day April or May: Hands-on workshop, time and date.

There is a fee for the course to cover costs of refreshments, hand-outs, etc. For more information, call the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, Clinton County, at (570) 726-0022.

Smart Stuff with Twig Walkingstick

Dear Twig: I was reading my mother's bird field guide, and it said certain birds — the yellow warbler, for one — live in riparian zones. What's a riparian zone?



A dark green tunnel of trees that shades the waters of a cool clear stream

A bright, sunny flower-filled meadow that grows right up to the edge of a river

A deep green doughnut of forest, with a lake in the hole of the doughnut

Those are examples of riparian zones. Riparian (ri-PARE-ee-un) zones are lands that border our streams and rivers and lakes and ponds

Many birds need riparian zones — healthy intact ones that is. (Many riparian zones have been cleared of trees or otherwise damaged.) So do many plants, mammals, reptiles and amphibians. Riparian zones give them food, shelter and water that they can't get anywhere else.

Riparian zones have another job, too. Their roots filter runoff and take out pollutants before the pollutants can dirty a stream. They give us cleaner, healthier waters and a healthier environment as a whole.

Mmm, forest doughnut,

Twig

Lehigh County Extension Revises Weight Loss Program

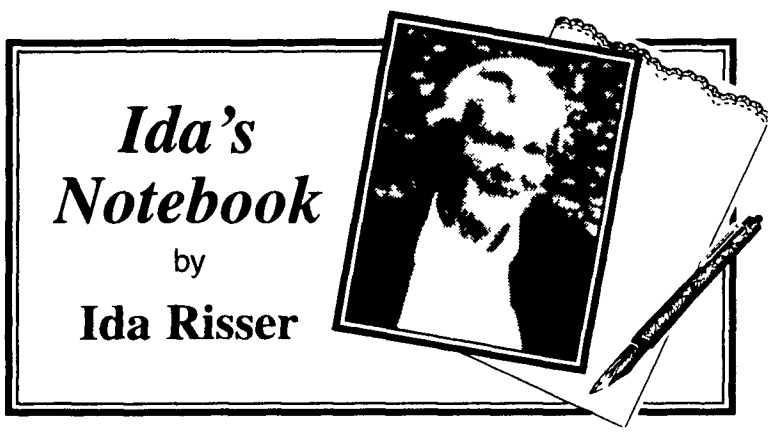
ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — Tempted by holiday goodies that may increase your weight? Plan to take off any extra pounds by enrolling in "My New Weigh Of Life," a research-based healthy eating/weight management program developed by Penn State and taught by specially trained dietitians at various locations in the Lehigh Valley.

The original 12 week/2 hour per week program has been revised so that it will more easily fit into your busy schedule.

The revised program is 10 weeks, 1 hour per week, and will cover: components of a balanced diet; understanding and using food labels; recommended portion sizes; determining a personal healthy weight; components of a healthy lifestyle; preparing for and managing behavior change for a healthy lifestyle; identifying high-risk foods/situations; and more. A participant book and additional materials are provided.

Classes will meet every Wednesday from Jan. 7 through Mar. 10 and run from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. at Lehigh County Cooperative Extension, Lehigh County Agriculture Center classroom, 4184 Dorney Park Road, Allentown. The cost is $70 per participant.

To register, call the Northampton County Cooperative Extension Office no later than Dec. 30 at (610) 746-1970 or visit our Website: http://northampton.extension.psu.edu/Nutrition/wtclsscdl.html. You may contact Lois Killcoyne, food and nutrition extension agent, at the above number if you have any questions.



Apparently we have a raccoon who visits us at night. It comes in the cat door to the garage. Most of the time it will empty the cat dish and walk in the water dish. But, the other night it tore open the sunflower seed bag that I bought for the birds. After sweeping it up, I put the bag in a corner of the kitchen out of it's reach.

We had guests from Maine for a few days. Our daughter and her husband have three young boys, and they made this a lively place. They like to roll around on my round hassock and wrestle with each other. One boy made a pillow out of a very soft red material and gave it to us. Another had drawn a picture so big that I had to put it on the dishwasher door as the refrigerator door is full.

We were guests for Thanksgiving and enjoyed some turkeys made a different way. A 12-pound bird was ready to eat in 30 minutes by doing it in a deep kettle of boiling oil. It was fueled with a small propane tank.

Later two grandsons shared a birthday celebration as their special days are only eight days apart. They were thrilled to receive many gifts. Children these days would not be satisfied with a 10-cent handkerchief or a string of blue wooden beads. I still have a pair that was given to me decades ago.

When I'm not thinking about making Christmas decorations, I work on embroidering a pillowcase. One is finished and the other might wait a while as I write notes on cards. Several grandchildren have birthdays after Christmas. And, my sister has a wedding anniversary Dec. 22. She had a beautiful church wedding almost 50 years ago.

Virginia Woman Wins $25,000 In National Beef Cook-Off

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

FORT WORTH, Tex. — When Lori Welander's original recipe for "Grilled Steaks Balsamico" won the 25th National Beef Cook-Off recently, the Richmond woman was somewhat dazed.

"I cannot even fathom how I won the grand prize," Welander said. "I was absolutely in shock. At least in mind it was the easiest recipe."

Welander was delighted that Eric, her 15-year old son could join her in Texas for the cook-off event. His attendance was unplanned, but the result of Hurricane Isabel, which closed district schools.

Charles Welander, Lori's husband was unable to attend, but he had this to say about his wife's winning recipe, "It's a keeper."

The preparation time for the steaks was minimal. For two hours the steaks were marinating inside a zip-lock plastic food bag with a prepared balsamic vinaigrette to which, for a really unique flavor, Welander had added fig preserves.

Over ash-covered coals the steaks were grilled to a perfect doneness, accompanied by plump little red and yellow pear tomato kabobs that were grilled on the side.

Lori dressed up the entire works with rosemary leaves and served the steaks with a herb and garlic cheese sauce that she melted using a package of soft cheese.

"My garnish was rosemary leaves and red and yellow tomatoes. I love working with fresh ingredients," she said.

Actual preparation was 30-minutes.

Some time ago when Lori discovered flat iron steaks, a new cut of beef.

"It's an awesome cut," she said, describing the flat iron as lean and fast cooking. "It's a relatively new cut, second in tenderness to beef tenderloin."

Someone has dubbed the flat iron steak the "darling" of steak houses. Consumers frequenting supermarkets are also giving it a thumbs up.

Lori Welander, Richmond, Virginia, said her priority in developing her contest recipe entry was that it be tasty, nutritious, and fast and easy to prepare. A taste of Grilled Steaks Balsamico convinced judges that it was worthy of the $25,000 prize.

Before she nailed down the recipe, Welander's homework was to experiment and analyze her ingredients. In the contest requirements, the limit was eight ingredients.

Instead of figs, she economized with fig preserves.

'I love figs as a component of the marinade," she said.

Her priority in developing the recipe was that it be attractive to women who are caught up in fast-paced lifestyles. The recipe had to be tasty, nutritious, fast and easy — one she wouldn't hesitate to promote among her own circle of friends.

"I love to cook but I have a lot of friends who don't," she said. "Family dinners are so crucial. So many families are moving away from family dinner time."

Grilled Steaks Balsamico virtually invalidates excuses for "not having the time," to prepare a meal. While sharing notes about the day, family members can sit down to dinner and enjoy it in a convivial manner.

The steaks lend themselves to being served with crusty bread and a fresh green salad, for lighter fare. Give the family a more substantial meal by adding a hearty potato or rice entree, and top it off with dessert.

"I'm not in anyway a trained, formal cook," says Welander, who holds a part-time position with a consulting firm.

The simple recipe tingled the taste buds of connoisseurs who had convened to judge the competition in Cow Town, USA. They discovered that a serving of Grilled Steaks Balsamico was mighty succulent eating.

Because beef is their business, the Beef Cook-Off activities were popular with cowboys who had taken leave from their surrounding ranches in order to enjoy brief sojourns in town.

They were eager to know which of the 20 finalists would take home the $50,000 contest grand prize. A General Electric Profile Oven with Trivection technology was amongst the gifts to Welander.

"The National Beef Cook-Off strength is that it gives an opportunity to meet real people," Welander said. "Every finalist has a hostess. It really puts a personal note into the contest. It is phenomenally organized."

About 3,000 entrants participated in four categories: One Dish Meals, Grilled Beef, Handheld Kid Pleasers and Quick and Easy Beef. The recipes were judged on taste, ease of preparation, and appearance.

The primary sponsors were NBCO (fact sheet and history are on web site) and the Beef Check-Off program funded by beef producers through their $1-per-head check-off and produced for the Cattlemen's Beef Board and state beef councils by the American National Cattle Women, Inc., and the National Cattlemen's Beef Association; Albertsons; General Electric Company; Weber-Stephen Products Company; Texas Beef Council; and the Fort Worth Stock Show and Rodeo.

To learn more about the National Beef Cook-Off on the internet visit: www.beefcookoff.org.

GRILLED STEAKS BALSAMICO

- 4 beef shoulder top blade (flat iron) steaks (6-8 oz. each) or boneless beef chuck eye steaks, cut 1-inch thick
- 1 package (5.2 oz.) herb and garlic soft spreadable cheese

Garnish:

- 1½ cups mixed red and yellow tomatoes
- 4 rosemary branches or bamboo skewers soaked in water

Marinade:

- ⅔ cup prepared balsamic vinaigrette
- ¼ cup fig preserves (or chopped dried figs)

Place marinade ingredients in a blender or food processor fitted with a steel blade. Process until blended. Place steaks and marinade in a food-safe plastic bag; turn to coat. Close bag securely and marinate at least two hours.

Thread tomatoes on the four rosemary branches, removing leaves as necessary.

Remove steaks from marinade and discard marinade. Place steaks on grill over medium ash-covered coals. Grill steaks covered for 10-14 minutes for medium rare to medium doneness, turning occasionally. Season with salt and pepper as desired.

Five to seven minutes before steaks are done, place tomato kabobs on outer edge of grid and grill until heated through, turning once. Garnish with rosemary.

Heat cheese in small saucepan over medium low heat 2-4 minutes, until melted, stirring frequently. Serve steaks with sauce.

Makes 4 servings.

ANGUS ART: The American Angus Association, text by Keith Evans. American Angus Association, 2003, 70 pp., no price listed. No ISBN.

Bold, black cattle. Eye-appealing, realistic art. Attention to detail. A smooth canvas.

The classics of good livestock art are all here in this big, bold book called "Angus Art," published by the American Angus Association from St. Joseph, Mo.

As the book notes, one man made a lot of people happy and influenced perhaps legions of generations.

The book notes: "The heart and soul of the Angus art collection, however, is Frank Murphy's paintings and drawings. Born in 1920 in Vinton, Iowa, Murphy grew up near Brownsville, Texas, founded in the 1850s by his maternal great-grandfather. Inspired by his artist mother, Lucile Champion Murphy, he developed an interest in art and drawing at an early age. Some of his first models were the mounted display animals at Chicago's Field Museum of Natural History."

There's a great deal more about Murphy and how this art, collected and on display at the association headquarters in Missouri, came to be. Other artists are portrayed as well, including great work by Steve Zipp, Steve Van Dyke, Galen Struve, K.S. King, Gretchen C. Meyers, and others, in addition to sculptures by Jim Reno.

The beauty lies in the reproduction of the artwork on heavy, coated paper, of the individual, very colorful paintings. It is fascinating to watch the progression of the breed, from the big old fat animals in the middle of the previous century to a leaner, muscular, dominating type of beef from the 1980s to the present day.

AMISH LANE: Poems From The Earth, by Thomas Irvin Maust. Brothersvalley Publishing, 2003, 79 pp., no price listed, no ISBN.

Perhaps this collection of poetry was written out of homesickness for the hills of Pennsylvania. It was a journey away from his homeland taken as a 4-H'er, through an international farm exchange program, that Maust met his Norwegian wife, Kirsten. Twenty-one years ago, Maust went to Norway because Kirsten was homesick.

Many things happened since. Maust learned to speak Norwegian. He kept his English sharp by writing poems.

But he couldn't stop thinking about why he loved Pennsylvania so much.

As a result, we have "Amish Lane," a book written out of love for Thomas Maust's native Brothersvalley home in Berlin. Lane, what Maust calls "poems from the earth," recalls red currants, snapping turtles, catty-whompus, snakes in the lilac, listening to the corn grow, Christmas dinners, cracking hickory nuts, and countless other blessings.

These are light, beautiful poems that instill in us a sense of wonder about the place that, for many of us who live in Pennsylvania, sometimes take for granted.

Order from Brothersvalley Publishing 244 Stony Creek Rd., Berlin, PA 15530, (814) 267-5350. For more information, contact Charlene Murray in Berlin at the same number, or crc—41@yahoo.com.

THE SLATE ROOF BIBLE: Understanding, Installing, and Restoring the World's Finest Roof, by Joseph Jenkins, 2nd ed. Jenkins Publishing, 2003, 318 pp., $40.00. ISBN 0-9644258-1-5

Jenkins has a hard time, sometimes.

He has a hard time understanding what people think and believe, especially about slate roofs.

A constant theme, especially early on in this book to end all books about slate roofs — why do people ignore slate roofs' critical value? Why do some, almost at a whim, want to remove perfectly good, absolutely long-lasting, home-value-improving, durable and lovely slate roofs, to replace them with cheap asphalt shingles, which have a maximum 20-year life?

And that look ugly and are costly besides?

Jenkins provides a lot of answers. He also provides more photos and more descriptions of the best slate roof designs throughout the world in this book than in any book previously.

"Slate Roof Bible" is exactly what the name implies: everything you could possibly care to know about the history, designs, colors, shapes, textures, maintenance, and sheer beauty of an endurable, aesthetically pleasing slate roof.

Jenkins has taken great pains to provide photos and descriptions of types of slate, examples of roofs from all over the world, picking the right kind of slate, installing slate, and working on methods to improve and ensure the beauty of slate.

There are even ads for businesses in the slate roof industry. Along with an index of slate information, of course.

If you could earn a doctorate in slate roof, this is probably the only book you'd need.

MEETING WISDOM: Tap Into The Wisdom and Insight of Thousands of 12-Step Meetings In A Single Book, by Brian L. Meeting Wisdom Publishing, 2002, 181 pp., $16.95, ISBN 0-9718779-1-2

Without trust, Brian L. notes in "Meeting Wisdom," life isn't much worth living. And happiness, for the most part, has very little to do with circumstances — it is simply a state of mind.

The book has a lot of thoughtful, experience-laden sayings that can prove helpful through the stressful holidays.

ANSWER — Bob Silverman, Annville, wanted to locate a company or individual who would dismantle an old stone farmhouse on a Lebanon County property. Thanks to Adam Yakubowski who writes that he is an independent contractor who specializes in historic stone structures-renovations. He can be contacted at (570) 929-1133.

ANSWER — Another response was received this week for Fred Lappe, Southold, N.Y., who wanted to know if anyone has a good picture or painting of a young man plowing with seven mules or seven horses. Thanks to Charlie Myers who writes he has a framed 15x19-inch picture with seven mules and a boy. If interested, call Pa. (717) 569-1255.

ANSWER — K. Twiss needed a set of rules for the board game Backgammon. She writes that she received a great response and would like to thank very much whomever sent it.

ANSWER — In answer to the problem with a sweating, dripping toliet, Nancy Fountaine, Strykersville, N.Y., sends this advice. She had the same problem. In fact, it was so bad, a puddle usually formed on the bathroom floor. She tried various solutions that did not work until a plumber took the back off the toliet and put in a permanent insulated line. He had to shut off the water to the toliet for 24 hours, so they needed to fill a pail of water to flush the toliet for a day. Since then, no more dripping, emptying drip catchers, and no more drippy sponges.

ANSWER — Lynn Rossi, Lititz, wanted to know where to have a copper pot polished. Thanks to Bill Bard, Kirkwood Hay, for recommending Norco Metal Finishing, 238 Route Ave., Pottstown. Phone (610) 323-3473.

ANSWER — Lynn Rossi, Lititz, wanted to know how to get rid of a groundhog burrowed beneath a large rock on her urban property. A person called and recommended she put a load of mothballs down the holes. By the time the aroma of the mothballs evaporated, the groundhog had disappeared.

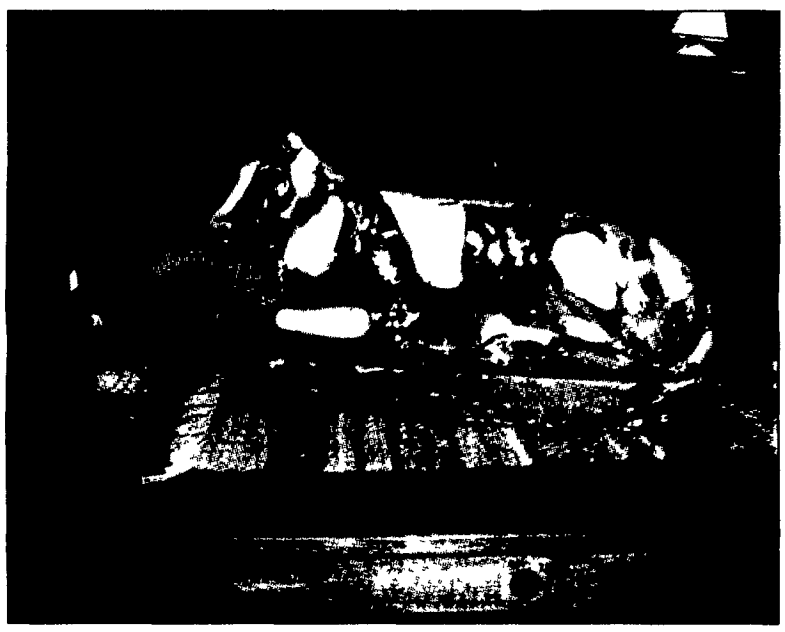
Antiques Center

Recently, movie directors have used Shank's Barn as a resource for movie props. They buy some items and rent others, such as the barn cupolas in the background.

Rodney Shank stands by a display of old wooden rocking chairs, many with original cane seats.



This cow is about four-feet in length and extremely heavy, but missing its ears.

Curious? Shank's Barn Has a Trip For You! Architectural Treasures Abound

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

OXFORD (Chester Co.) — Rodney Shank always liked old stuff. When he'd find an unique piece, he'd buy it. Soon he had so much stuff, he needed to get rid of some of it.

That's when he found out that a lot of other people liked old stuff such as horse stalls, barn vents, transom, doors, windows, and hand-forged hardware.

Thousands of items can be found in the barns, outbuildings, and acreage of Shank's seven-acre farm.

The amazing thing is that Shank has a story attached to almost every item.

"I got that 1910 tin cupola off a barn in Chambersburg," he'd say. Or, "That barn vent came from Biglerville where that (vent) style is unique to the area."

Shank's wife Barbara oversees the top floor of the barn dedicated to finer antiques and furniture.

"I love having all this stuff around me," Barbara said.

Sometimes she laments at parting with some prized pieces, but knows she can't keep it all.

"This is more than inventory," she said of her personal attachment to things she values.

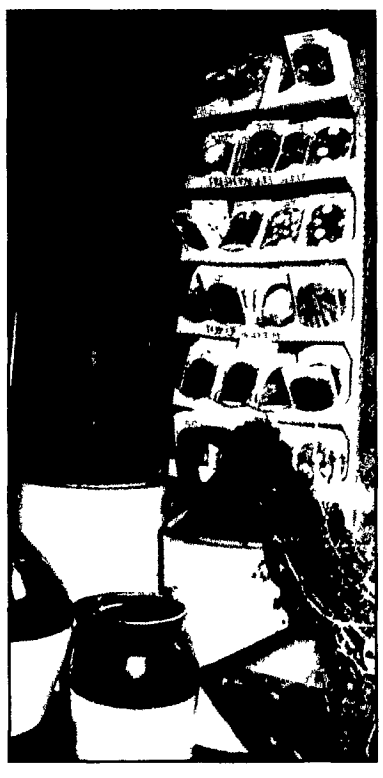
(Turn to Page B19)

Barbara Shank said, "This business is like being a drug addict. One day you get a fix, and then it goes a month before you get another one."

Some items are recycled, such as this window frame turned into a display cupboard.



Even old seed packets can be found at Shank's.

Christmas Stocking Stuffers For Antiquers

Got an antiques lover on your Christmas list?

There's still time left to find an imaginative antique gift to put in a Christmas stocking. There are plenty of small treaures and collectibles at affordable prices, which could turn a young collector or teen-ager into a future collector.

Begin by looking in the glass display cases in antique shops where small oldies are kept. Tell the dealer you are looking for small, interesting pieces and set a price. You'd be surprised at what you can turn up!

The secret of finding the right antique or collectible gift starts with planning. Even if no one on your list collects antiques or collectibles, most will collect something such as pipes, toys or perfume bottles.

For instance, with the popularity of wines, consider old pressed glass wine decanters. They can be had for $25 up, depending where you find them. A unique gift would be one or more glass bottle stoppers. Some with colorful glass overlay designs have the beauty of paperweighs at a fraction of the price. They were made in porcelain, cut glass and pressed glass as well.

Also compatible are wine labels. They can be silver plate, sterling, ceramic or copper.

A single label can set them on the road to serious collecting. .

Shopping for the men in your life is a creative challenge. For the pipe smokers, it's easy.

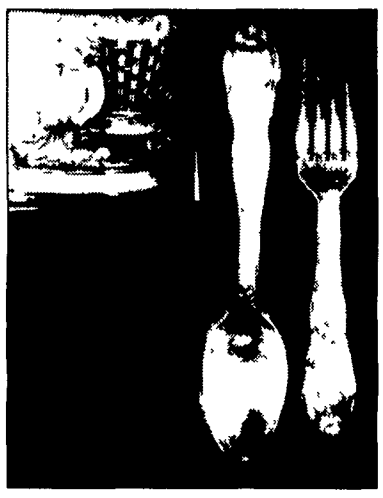
There are some novel Victorian pipe holders of gilded metals from $25 up. Cigar smokers may enjoy a metal carrying case, circa 1900s priced under $35. Antique cutters from the early 20th century often had interesting figural motifs. You can usually find them in antique shop display cases, along with odds and ends.

Cigarbands were collected in the early 20th century, and used to decorate objects.

There are cigarband decorated ashtrays and paperweights under $25, even in shops. The colorful cigarbands were pasted on the underside of the glass.

Unusual items can perk up any sterile office and needn't take up much room. Late 19th century letter openers , often part of writing sets, had fancy handles.

Some were of pearl, sterling silver, even jade. Other writing set possibilities are metal embossed rolling blotters and stamp boxes. If you can find them, sets made by Louis Comfort Tiffany would be an ultimate office stocking stuffer.



Cut overlay cologne stoppers, sandwich glass, 19th century. Photo credit: Private collection.

A single flatware serving piece, be it sterling or silver-plate, from the late 19th to early 20th century can be useful and decorative. Never mind if its original purpose as fish server or asparagus tongs has long been out of fashion. 19th century fish carvers are a work of art with scenes engraved on their blades. They are just one type of collectible carving knives. Their handles were of ebony, stag horn, ivory, silver and wood.

Souvenir spoons have long been collected with engraved scenes or heads of famous people on the handles. They were made in both sterling silver and silver-plate. Some had Christmas subjects.

Around the turn of the century "gift" cups with such sayings as "A present" and "Renenber Me" were given for special occasions. Made of inexpensive china, in Germany, they were embellished with gilt and floral motifs. Costs vary from $40 up in shops.

CLUES: A single, handblown, old tree ornament or a figural, Christmas tree light bulb could be the perfect stocking stuffer. Still affordable are small ornaments in the shape of fruit clusters and bells. If you plan to put them in a stocking be sure they are carefully wrapped, and marked fragile.

Shank's Barn Worth Trip To Find Architecture Treasures, More

drug addict. One day you get a fix (when you find a really great piece) and then it may go a month before you get another fix."

Shank consults books to determine the date and name of many pieces.

"But you can't use a book to price."

Price is determined by the cost he paid for an item and the collectibility of the item.

Although many dealers may carry a few pieces of architecture finds, few have the quantity Shank has. Hundreds of doors almost guarantees that a customer can find one in the size and style desired.

Much of Shank's acquisitions happen word-of-mouth. He buys items from one person, who tells another person who has a similar item that Shank will buy.

"If it's valuable, I'm willing to pay," Shank said.

Some larger items are rented occassionally by movie producers as props. Movie producers also purchase many of the items.

Although Shank has been into amassing items for years, it was only six years ago that he sold his dairy herd to go into marketing old stuff as a full-time job.

Recently Shank has been distributing business cards with the words: "Curious? Three-quarters of an acre of interesting items. Worth the trip."

Cast iron tubs, spindles, knobs, fences, grates, wooden buckets, corn bins — if you can't find it at Shanks, it probably isn't available.

Shank's Barn, 1200 Limestone Rd., Oxford, is located on Route 10, six miles north of Oxford and a quarter mile south on Rt. 896.

For more information, call Shank at (610) 932-9212.

Some items such as this old feed bin is enhanced by artistic painting.

Columns and posts in all sizes and shapes attract buyers restoring properties to original grandeur or those who want to add unique touches to a new home.

Numerous signs direct customers to the many different areas where items are displayed.

Prototypes of Rutters Dairy milk truck, Cletrac crawler, and Winross bulk feed trailer.

Collector Items Available At Farm Show

GAP (Lancaster Co.) — Limited edition collectibles will again be sold at the state Farm Show Items are offered with permission on the Pennsylvania Farm Show Commission and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Royalities earned are used to help support the State Farm Show Most of the limited edition collectibles sell out during the show each year, so many exhibitors and collectors pre-order them in advance.

• Collector banks. 1950s DIVCO milk delivery truck with Rutter Brothers Dairies logo on sides and front. Pennsylvania Farm Show logo on rear (1/25th scale). A newly restored full-size Rutters Dairy delivery truck will be on display.

• Show tractor. Cletrac HG-42 crawler, metal tracks, and farmer driver. Audio cassette of real Cletrac crawler sounds included with each model. A recently restored full-size Cletrac HG-42 will be on display.

• Collector trucks. 18-wheeler bulk feed delivery truck, first run off new tooling. Truck cab is Mack day cab by Penjoy of Pennsylvania or a Kenworth day cab by Winross. Both are built in 1/64th scale. Limited edition Shown in the photo is the prototype Winross KW cab and bulk feed trailer

• Beanie-type goats "Becky and Bucky" goat twins with custom embroidering commemorating the 88th Pennsylvania Show. 600 each made for this show. Will have "stress" sheep, keychains, and various small 1/64th scale tractors.

Where to buy Pennsylvania Farm Show collectibles at the show: You'll find sales booths in the Cameron Street lobby and in the old Main Expo building next to the Que-Creek coal miners rescue capsule.

For more information, contact Nolt Enterprises at www.dnolt.com, call (717) 768-3066, or write Collectibles, P.O. Box 553, Gap, PA 17527.

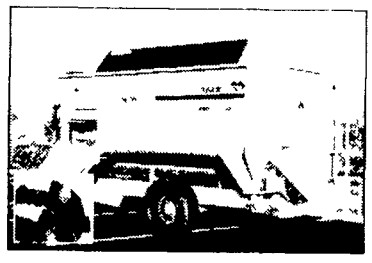
Kuhn Knight Introduces New Generation Of Reel Mixer

BRODHEAD, Wis. — Kuhn Knight, Inc., introduces the new 3100 series Reel Auggie and commercial reel mixers.

This new generation of reel mixers is now more specifically designed to meet the needs of beef and dairy producers across the country. The key improvement includes new, lower auger options specifically designed for different ration applications.

The grain option is designed for rations with higher grain content and maintains ration quality by gentle handling of feed like flaked corn. The roughage option is designed for rations with a higher hay content and improves ration quality by processing hay to a more uniform length.

When additional hay processing is required, the Roughage Maxx™ System is available. It consists of an option whereby scalloped knives are bolted to the lower roughage auger for maximum hay-processing efficiency Reel Auggie and commercial reel mixer sizes range from 150 to 950 cubic feet mixing capacity.



This new generation of reel mixers is now more specifically designed to meet the needs of beef and dairy producers across the country.

Delaware Hosts Food, Farming Summit

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

WILMINGTON, Del. — Delaware Governor Ruth Ann Minner was raised on a farm near Milford, Del. and continues to live on a farm today She takes a strong stand for agriculture in her state.

Minner spoke at the recent Mid-Atlantic Food & Farm Coalition's 5th Annual Future of Our Food and Farms Summit in Wilmington. More than 300 people attended the two-day event Dec. 4-5.

"I started as a farm girl, and I hope that God grants me the ability to live on the farm for the rest of my life," Minner said.

When groups try to marginalize agriculture in Delaware, Minner is quick to defend the need for a strong food and agriculture system. She gave the example of a recent dispute over a farm operation, which was opposed by other industrial groups.

Delaware Gov. Ruth Ann Minner is a strong voice for agriculture in her state. Here she addresses guests at the Future of Our Food and Farms Summit in Wilmington.

Carol Tucker Foreman, director of the Food Policy Institute, describes the increasingly tough job of fighting both hunger and obesity in the U.S. Children in this country don't drink enough milk or eat enough fruits and vegetables, she said.

"I told them, 'perhaps you'd like to try drinking your oil and eating your nuts and bolts,"' Minner said.

The situation turned out favorably for agriculture.

As a girl of 16, Minner left school to help support her parents and siblings. She returned to earn a GED in her 30s — as a widowed single mother of three sons.

Minner went on to become a state senator from 1982 to 1992. She served as lieutenant governor from 1993-2001, after which she was elected Delaware's first woman governor.

One of her major political accomplishments as senator was the Delaware Land and Water Conservation Act, which resulted in the preservation of more than 30,000 acres of farmland in the state. Altogether, Delaware has preserved about 75,000 acres of farmland.

In addition to advocating land preservation, Minner also pushes policies that help reduce risks to farmers, including crop insurance.

"It's more and more important that farmers protect themselves," she said.

"Farmland won't be productive without farmers."

Minner also supports ag in the classroom initiatives and promotes direct marketing as both a selling and educational tool.

"Farmers' markets are great way for farmers not only to sell their produce, but also to sell farming," she said. "If we're going to survive, we're going to need a steady stream of good, quality agricultural products."

Carol Tucker Foreman, director of the Food Policy Institute, Consumer Federation of America, spoke about the dilemma of rising hunger and obesity problems in this country.

Foreman said that last year about 35 million people in the U.S. "lived in families that were struggling to put enough food on the table," — up about 2 million from two years ago.

"For them, there was no bountiful Thanksgiving," Foreman said.

At the same time, 65 percent of the country is overweight, and 20 percent of people are considered obese. The health problems brought on by obesity cost our society about $100 billion a year, according to Foreman.

"Kids eat too much, too much of the wrong kinds of foods, and do too little," she said, noting that heart problems begin in childhood.

Foreman wants to see soda and junk foods kicked out of schools and replaced with milk, fruits, and vegetables, including the food sold in vending machines.

Schools, which often sign contracts with soda companies, have a financial interest in selling children more soda. To Foreman, that's not just a big problem, it's also morally wrong.

"Making money off of selling kids soft drinks in school is, in my mind, a form of child abuse," she said.

Foreman said the country needs a "social movement" with policies that back up public goals of good health. She compared the possibilities of such a movement with the success of the long-running anti-smoking campaign.

"Congress should direct USDA to set standards for all foods sold in schools," she said. "You don't have to take vending machines out — just put good food in them.

"Our children are too precious," Foreman said.

The summit included presentations on a variety of topics, including minority farmers, direct-marketing, buy-local initiatives, community planning for agricultural land, and youth voices in agriculture.

Dennis Wolff, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, gave some opening remarks. He noted new initiatives in Pennsylvania, including the formation of Keystone Agriculture Innovation Centers throughout the state to link economic development with agriculture, and the recent availability of the state's small business loan program to farmers.

Several people received recognition for their achievements in the agriculture and food system in the Mid-Atlantic region.

Award-winners were Bruce Mertz, executive director of Future Harvest-CASA (Chesapeake Alliance for Sustainable Agriculture), Mid-Atlantic Innovation and Leadership Award; Yao Afantchao of Maryland, Minority Farming Leadership Award; and Tony Evans, retired Maryland Farmers' Market Program coordinator, Future of Our Food and Farms Career Achievement Award.

Lead sponsors for the summit were USDA's CSREES and Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) programs. Major sponsors were the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Nutrition Program. America's Second Harvest and the Land O' Lakes Foundation were supporting sponsors.

Mid-Atlantic Food & Farm Coalition Lifetime Achievement Award goes to Tony Evans, left, retired Maryland Farmers' Market Program coordinator. He is congratulated by Robert Halman, University of Maryland, executive assistant to the agriculture secretary for interagency affairs.

Helping You Unearth Buried Profits

Don't let the hardpan block your profit potential!

- The Case-DMI Ecolo-Til 2500 breaks through the hardpan, unlike conventional tillage tools

AND

- Increases water absorption and air exchange for better nutrient flow up and down the soil profile and root system

AND

- Warms up the soil in the spring for earlier planting

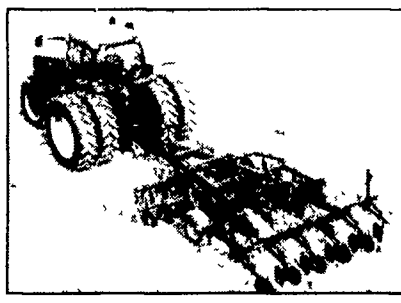
AND

- Delivers more uniform crop germination

Hoober Offers Case-DMI Ecolo-Til 2500 Units From 3 to 9 Shanks

Whether its too much water, or not enough, DMI is the solution.

CASE DMI



Hoober also has 530 and 730 Case-DMI subsoilers in stock & ready for delivery.

Introducing The Grand L 30 Series From Kubota

IntelliPanel™ – The Grand L30 is the only tractor in it's class to feature this leading-edge communication system

Transmission – Choose between HST (Feather Step Hydrostatic), GST (Glide Shift) or FST (Full Synchonized Main & Shuttle) for the system that best suits your needs

Engine –3-Vortex Combustion System Diesel Engine has been enhanced with balancers and larger displacement for increased power output and PTO torque

Independent PTO –Live-independent PTO clutch is hydraulically actuated which allows both the rear and mid PTO's to be independently engaged/disengaged while the tractor is in motion

Variety of Attachments - Front loaders, mid mount mowers, backhoes, box scrapers, rotary tillers & post hole diggers just to name a few

So Many Features...So Little Time

Yield Monitor 2000 Systems

UP TO $1,100 OFF!
PFadvantage Yield Monitor Systems

Hurry! Offer Expires December 19, 2003!

What does an Ag Leader Yield Monitor do for you?

- Continuously measures and displays yield, moisture, grain flow, total bushels and more
- Instantaneous moisture readings let you know if a field is ready to harvest
- Instantaneous yield readings tell you how your crop is doing
- Prevent overloading of trucks
- Provides summary printout of all fields & loads harvested
- Comes with an installation kit engineered for your specific combine model to ease installation. Kits available for combines manufactured up to 30 years ago
- Couple with a GPS receiver, like the GPS1000 plus, for accurate yield and moisture maps

What additional features are available on the PFadvantage?

- Site verification - record locations of different hybrids, fertilizers, or chemicals*
- Application control - vary application rate manually or through prescriptions written to a memory card*
- As-applied mapping - record actual application rates*
- Gridding for soil sampling - load in pre-recorded grids or create grids in the field using field boundary maps*
- Navigation - guides the operator to gridded or manually entered points*
- Built-in field marking capability*
- On screen map – view swath based coverage map, boundary map or to-be-applied target rate map*

GPS receiver required*

TK crawlers work where conventional tractors can't

A TK crawler turns tighter than conventional tractors too That's a big advantage in cramped quarters or when making head land turns

YOU EXPECT MORE FROM A LEADER

It should come as no surprise that the GLEANER R65/R75 combines are among the easiest in the industry to operate. After all, GLEANER was the first to introduce electro-hydraulic controls back in 1972. We have a lot of experience in operator control and comfort.

The minute you sit down in the deluxe air-ride seat, you'll notice how all the most frequently used controls are located on the armrest console or the new hydro control handle. Both are mounted to the seat, so they float with you over field contours. Gone are the days of trying to "home in" on a button or switch while bouncing over end-row furrows or ruts in the field.

Toolcat™ 5600 Utility Work Machine
...changing the way the world works!

You told us what you wanted. This is it.

The revolutionary Toolcat 5600 was developed after hundreds of hours of research with equipment owners. It took years of innovative planning, designing and testing to create the 5600 — an entirely new concept that needed an entirely new category: the utility work machine.

- Combines the best features of a loader, pickup truck and attachment carrier.
- Excels at large property maintenance and commercial groundskeeping.
- Wide choice of Bob-Tach™ mounted attachments.
- All-wheel steer.

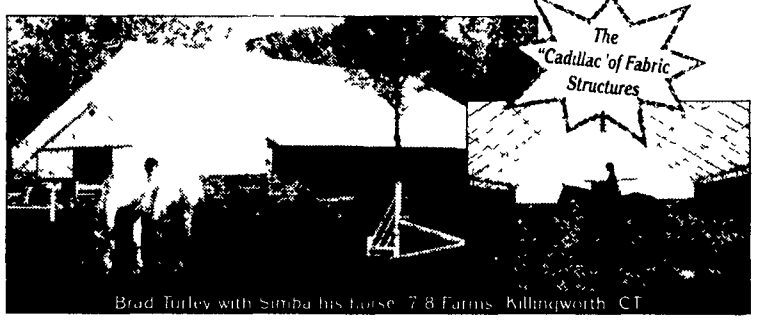
You must hear what Brad says:



Brad Turley with Simba his horse 7 8 Farms Killingworth CT

"I couldn't be more pleased with my riding arena!

(And my neighbors are talking, too!)"

"I knew what I wanted and I found it! After extensive research I knew I needed a fabric structure from We Cover. The facts that made my decision were:

"The Engineering – when I saw their heavy built trusses
"The Lighting – I can ride my horse in the natural light
"The Design – The building is designed like a building should be
"The Ventilation – The side curtains excellent air movement .

'My local building engineer is so impressed, he says he will never again recommend a traditional building for an indoor riding arena

"I recommend you call We Cover today!"

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seat better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for houses and barns.
DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.
STANDING SEAM
is ideal for houses.

CAN ALSO BE PICKED UP OR DELIVERED FROM LEBANON PLANT

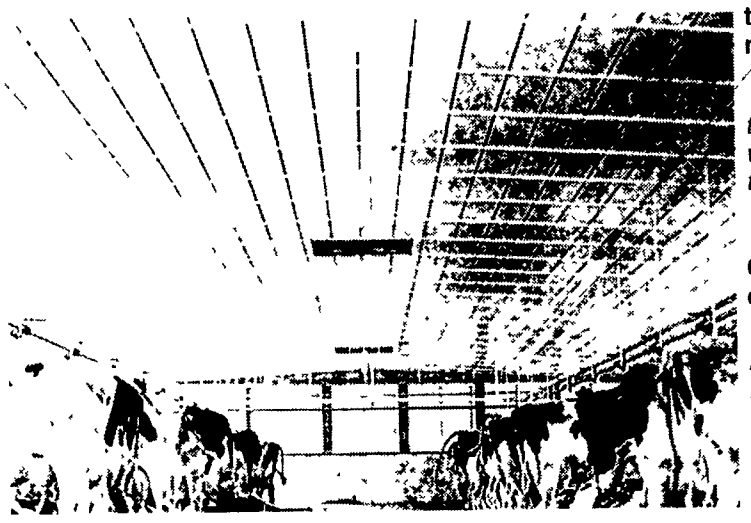
– Ceiling systems designed for your dairy, swine, and poultry facilities, as well – as shops, warehouses, garages, arenas, and more.

Tired of working in a cold, noisy shop?

These ceiling systems are designed to hold any amount of insulation, and with insulation above, produce sound reduction qualities much greater than steel

Is the banding in your hog or poultry barn deteriorating?

Let us replace them with our heavier polyester bands which do not stretch or become brittle over time



Are you frustrated with the birds in your implement shed?

Contemplating a drop ceiling?

Demand a triply ceiling above your drop ceiling if there is insulation being installed. This will serve as a vapor barrier along with permanently preventing falling insulation.

Providing the Ag industry with a very durable, attractive, waterproof, noncorrosive, alternative to conventional ceilings at a fraction of the cost.

We can also meet All you Insulation Needs!

2. New customers have experienced average milk gains of 3 lbs. per cow, per day.
3. Feed consistent, dry corn year-round.
4. Prevent mycotoxins and storage loss by feeding dry corn over high-moisture corn.
5. We can show you how feeding our corn will save you $$$ in the long run.
6. Store your corn at our mill and pay no storage fees if we grind your corn.

USA-GYPSUM
Improving soils - naturally!
21% calcium - 17% Sulfate
Gypsum is a soil conditioner, amendment & fertilizer
USAGypsum
Want better soil, deeper water infiltration and healthier root systems?
- pH neutral source of calcium 100% more soluble than lime
- Provides Sulfur in sulfate form The form plant roots can absorb
- Loosens heavy clay & compacted soils - lets air & water penetrate
- Reduces erosion on slopes and soils with poor structure
- Reduces nutritional tie up & makes NP&K more available
- Improves acid soils especially when co-used with lime
- Prepare soil for no-till Unlike lime which must be incorporated into the soil and come in contact with soil acids to be released, gypsum supplies a constant supply of soluble calcium to the soil
- Improves fruit & produce quality & reduces some plant disease
